START INQUIRY INTO SHOOTING OF U. S. MARINE

Naval Surgeon Officer Clashes With President Moncado After Tragedy

FEELING RUNS HIGH

Strain in Meeting Relief Requirements Proves Too Great for Officials

Managua, Nicaragua—(AP)—A searching inquiry was under way today into events of Saturday night which culminated in the shooting of a marine corps sergeant and a subsequent dramatic contact between a naval surgeon officer and the president of Nicaragua.

The marine corps sergeant, W. H. Pigg, who also was a second lieutenant in the Nicaraguan national guard, is understood to have become slightly demented as a consequence of the severe strain to which everyone here has been subjected since last Tuesday's quake.

In the course of a reprimand to members of the Guardia Nacional, Pigg was shot and killed, and was taken to a house nearby where President Moncado and members of his staff had established their residence. Intense excitement prevailed and feeling outside ran high.

Lieutenant Commander William Hatfield who at nearby Campo de Marte has been in charge of the Herce surgical task which followed the earthquake, heard of the shooting, and understanding that a marine was wounded, rushed to the house.

He was stopped at the door by two Nicaraguan officials, supposed to be Anastacio Samoz, acting foreign minister, who was educated in the United States, and Antonio Flores Vega, minister of public works, who does not speak English.

Lieutenant Commander Hatfield, worn almost to the breaking point by the tremendous strain of hundreds of operations and other relief work with which he has been associated since Tuesday, demanded entrance and when it was refused forced his way into the house.

Quarrels With Moncado

Inside he found the marine sergeant dead instead of wounded as he had expected. President Moncado appeared in the excitement of the moment, reminded the American naval officer that he was president of Nicaragua, a reminder to which Hatfield made what was understood to be an undiplomatic answer.

Lieutenant Commander Hatfield left for Carriño, seaport on the Pacific coast, by a special United States Marine corps airplane at noon Sunday, leaving the surgical work which he has directed in the hands of others. No official statement has been made by Colonel F. L. Bradman, commanding marines, other than that an inquiry to develop the facts in Pigg's death was underway.

Managua spent a sad Easter Sunday. The city's churches all were destroyed in the quake which leveled the city and took 2,000 lives last Tuesday, but masses were said at several improvised chapels. Martial law of the strictest type prevailed and to most of the 15,000 inhabitants remaining in and about Managua the day was merely another in an endless quest for food.

The correspondent driving in from Puerto Zuelo after dark last night, found Managua deserted and dark, with the atmosphere of a cemetery at midnight. United States marines and Guardia members stood on every corner, watchful for looters, of whom 20 or more are understood to have been shot in the past few days.

The relief work, taken in charge by the Red Cross, is proceeding. President Moncado has ordered that all must work at clearing the refuse and debris to get any of the food which is being distributed.

CIRCUS FIRMS FACE SUIT FOR OVER MILLION

Accused of Conspiring to Create Monopoly in United States

Chicago—(AP)—A $1,040,000 damage suit charging that Sells-Floto circus, Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey and affiliated concerns conspired to create a monopoly in the circus business was filed in United States District court today on behalf of the Western Show company, Zack T. Miller and the Miller Brothers 101 ranch.

The bill of complaint, filed by Attorney Henry J. Johnston of Perry, Okla., charges the defendants with various illegal acts in the execution of their conspiracy, among them was the "enticing" of Tom Mix, movie actor, from the employ of the plaintiff to that of the Sells-Floto circus at a weekly salary of $1,000.

This was done, the complaint charges, after Mix had been widely advertised by the plaintiff.

It is also charged that the defendants caused the "defeating" of the plaintiff's advertisements and spread false propaganda as to their financial standing.

Many other performers, not named in the bill are alleged to have been lured by the defendants in an effort to eliminate competition of independent circus shows and create a monopoly.

CHILD UNPERTURBED BY OPEN PIN IN THROAT

Chicago—(AP)—Richard Paul Fortin, 7, laughs today despite the presence of an open safety pin in his throat.

The child does not know that surgeons plan to feed him bulky food and thus force the open pin into his stomach, then reverse its position and draw it through the esophagus to the throat where it can be removed. They could not take it out today as it pointed upward. If they cannot force it into the stomach they must operate.

Richard has felt no pain since he swallowed the pin Saturday night and beamed all day yesterday on nurses and physicians at the County hospital.

SEIZE BOOZE SHIPMENT WORTH OVER $15,000

Minneapolis—(AP)—Liquor valued by M. L. Harvey Eighth district prohibition administrator, at $15,375, retail, was seized yesterday when a patrolman stumbled upon a consignment by elanet.

The patrolman entered a garage on other business and espied a liquor laden truck bearing a Wisconsin license. Investigation by federal agents resulted in confiscation of another truck load of liquor in another garage.

The first consignment consisted of 21 fifty gallon drums of alcohol. The second truck held 975 gallons of moonshine. No arrests were made.

MICHIGAN MAN DROWNS WHEN LAKE ICE BREAKS

Calumet, Mich.—(AP)—John Webster, 50, Haddon, drowned in Portage lake yesterday when he broke through the ice as he and his wife, Caroline, were returning home from Easter services at a Hancock church.

The sister was rescued, but only after two men who had gone to the rescue broke through the ice and floundered about in the water for half an hour.

A rope was thrown to the four and Caroline and the two men were pulled ashore. Webster sank before help could reach him. His body had not been recovered.

Governor Puts Approval On Bribe Charge Prosecution

Madison—(AP)—The attorney general was today authorized by Gov. Philip LaFollette to prosecute the persons and corporations accused of violating the lobby laws and attempting bribery in the celebrated Senator Smith case.

Warrants charging violation of the lobby laws have been issued against the Bylesby Engineering and Management corporation, the Northern States Power company, William J. Hagenah, Chicago, vice president of the Bylesby corporation, and Ethan B. Miner, New Richmond, a former assemblyman.

Paul H. Raible, Chippewa Falls, has been named in warrants charging attempted bribery and violation of the lobby laws. All warrants were sworn out in superior court here Friday and are returnable Wednesday.

Complaints in the case were filed by Deputy Attorney General Fred M. Wylie.

All complaints were made in connection with the alleged attempt to bribe Sen. Peter J. Smith, Eau Claire, for his vote on public utility measures. Raible was in the employ of the Northern States Power company, a Bylesby subsidiary, and Miner was employed by Mr. Hagenah, according to information unearthed by a special senate investigating committee. Neither was registered as a lobbyist for the concern or for Mr. Hagenah.

"The attorney general," Gov. LaFollette's communication to the attorney general read, "is hereby requested to appear for the state of Wisconsin and prosecute in the proper courts such criminal action as shall seem warranted in this matter, and particularly a prosecution against Paul H. Raible for attempt to bribe."

New Trial For Kirkland; Judge Finds Evidence On First Count Insufficient

Valparaiso, Ind.—(AP)—Virgil Kirkland was granted a new trial today for the murder of his Gary school girl sweetheart, Arlene Draves. Judge Grant Crumpacker in Porter county circuit court ruled that evidence on the first count in the indictment, that of murder by striking the 13-year-old girl with his fist, was insufficient for conviction.

Judge Crumpacker's decision was handed down after he had studied the evidence for several weeks. Kirkland's punishment had been fixed by the jury at life imprisonment. The court said there would have been "no question about it" if the jury had voted for conviction on the court charging murder while committing rape.

A crowded courtroom heard the judge read his lengthy decision. Judge Crumpacker expressed sympathy for the family of the dead Gary, Ind., girl who died after a drinking party there last Nov. 29. He said a higher court would surely have reversed the jury's decision had he refused Kirkland a new trial and instead granted him an appeal.

"I received more mail regarding this case than any other in my experience on the bench," he said. "Ninety per cent of it was from Chicago and most of it from women."

Kirkland, a 20-year-old Gary mill worker, was convicted March 10 after a trial lasting 12 days before a male jury. He was not sentenced pending decision on his petition for a new trial. Four of his companions of the liquor party are awaiting trial on charges of attacking the girl.

Judge Crumpacker named April 29 as the date for Kirkland's new trial.

Chief Deputy Prosecutor John Underwood, Jr., characterized the decision today as an "outrage." He announced to the court the state would consider dismissing the first two counts of the indictment charging murder in perpetration of a rape and while attempting perpetration of a rape.

The court said it "could not believe the defendant guilty of premeditated guilt on the third or fourth counts of the affidavit there would be no question regarding a new trial," Judge Crumpacker said.

David Thompson, host to the liquor party, is scheduled to go on trial April 14 in Crown Point. He is expected to seek a continuance pending Kirkland's new trial.

"Kirkland was as surprised as anyone else at the girl's death," Judge Crumpacker said. "No motive has been assigned as to why the defendant should want to put her to death. There is no positive evidence that he had any thought of so doing."

The court said in its opinion Kirkland had struck the girl with his fist and that the blow on her head was the prime cause of death. It added the girl "did not die of a hemorrhage unless it was a cranial hemorrhage," but that "if the defendant did not intend to kill the girl, no matter how reckless his conduct was, he could not be convicted under count one of the affidavit."

Kirkland's face lit up as the judge intoned his decision to grant a new trial. So did those of his mother and step-father. Four brothers and the father of Miss Draves were in court also.

MAN FINED $50 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Green Bay Man Arrested After His Car Hits Another Machine

Frank Knack, route 6, Green Bay, was fined $50 and costs by Judge Theodore R. LaFollette in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty of drunken driving.

Knack also will lose his driver's license for six months, as a recommendation to that effect has been sent by the judge to the secretary of state. He paid the fine.

Knack was arrested about 1:45 Saturday afternoon after the car he was driving, crashed into the rear end of a machine driven by Peter Blanshan, Seymour.

With Mr. Blanshan at the time of the accident was Sergeant Earl Vandebogart of the Appleton police department. Sergeant Vandebogart was on duty at the time, but he placed Knack under arrest and held him until Officer Albert Deitgen arrived and took him back to the police department. Knack was held there until this morning.

The rear end of Blanshan's machine was only slightly damaged, while the bumper on Knack's car was broken.

THREE SEEKING POST NOW HELD BY C. A. FOWLER

Referendum on Auto Licenses Also Draws Attention of Voters

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All of Wisconsin will participate Tuesday in the election of a supreme court justice and the approval or rejection by referendum of a legislative proposal to issue automobile licenses through county clerks rather than from the established bureau at Madison.

While interest centers chiefly in the supreme court contest, selection of which also was made in the off-year balloting of six circuit judges, 12 municipal judges, the several county judges, two civil judges, and one district judge. Municipalities will elect mayors and other officials.

Three candidates aspire to the post of supreme court justice vacated by the death of Chief Justice A. J. Vinje, Superior. Justice Chester A. Fowler, Fond du Lac, appointed two years ago by former Gov. Walter J. Kohler and subsequently elected to complete the unexpired term, has as opponents Attorney General John W. Reynolds, Green Bay, Progressive Republican, and George L. Mensing, Milwaukee Socialist.

The principal campaign argument advanced by Justice Fowler has been that it would be unwise to remove an experienced jurist from the post he has proved himself capable of filling. Reynolds' plan for liberalization of the bench has raised the issue of whether the appointee of a conservative Republican shall be replaced by a LaFollette Progressive in a non-partisan body.

Made 5 Appointments

During the Kohler administration, political bosses recall, five appointments to the supreme court gave the conservatives a majority representation in the body. Justice Fowler's appointment was upheld

MANIAC SOUGHT AS SLAYER OF WOMAN

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—(AP)—The belief that a maniac committed the murder, police today continued checking half a dozen clues which they hoped might lead to a solution of the killing of Miss Minnie Dilley. The mutilated body of Miss Dilley, 76, and wealthy, was found Saturday night in her luxurious home. Although her head was crushed and throat slashed, the only possible weapon left by the slayer was a full bottle of ginger ale found near the body.

Authorities today declined to confirm reports that a diary supplying some important leads had been found in the rich recluse's home. This diary, according to neighbors, contains an entry expressing Miss Dilley's fear of some one to whom she had loaned money on a mortgage. It was reported she had threatened to foreclose to collect the loan.

Police said they intended to further question Anning Dilley, a nephew who found the body. Robbery was not the motive, police asserted.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY OF STARTING PRISON FIRE

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—Hugh Gibson and Clinton Grate, Ohio penitentiary convicts who confessed they were responsible of the fire of a year ago when 320 prisoners perished, today pleaded not guilty to three indictments charging first degree murder.

The pleas were heard by Judge C. J. Randall after he had named four attorneys to defend the men. Gibson and Grate had announced following their confessions last week that they would plead guilty of the court would guarantee that they would be sentenced to the electric chair immediately.

An indication that the pleas might be changed was given when the attorneys informed the court they retained the right to make a change later if they thought necessary.

Date of the trial will be set after attorneys for Gibson and Grate decide upon a future course.

NICARAGUAN CITIES APPEAL FOR U. S. AID

Washington—(AP)—American agencies in Nicaragua today were confronted by the problem of feeding thousands of refugees from Managua who have fled to the cities east of the earthquake-ravaged capital.

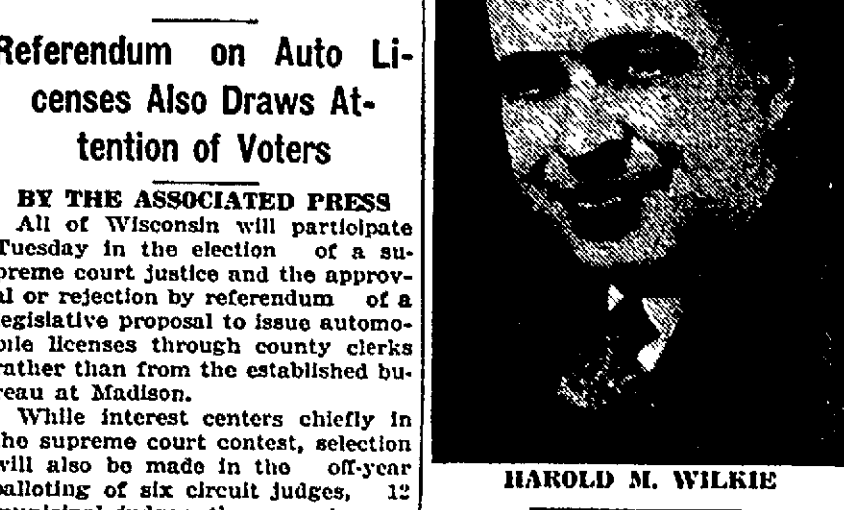

The state department made public a report from American Minister Hanna, saying relief had been requested by the cities of Granada and Masaya and that food supplies had been shipped to Granada. Ernest J. Swift, directing Red Cross activities, visited those cities on Saturday and found that they would require relief for some time.

ASKS FOR PROXIES IN LORILLARD COURT FIGHT

New York—(AP)—Benjamin L. Belt, president of P. Lorillard Co., has pressed a letter to stockholders asking for their proxies to be voted in ratification of the election of directors and officers at the recent regular meeting.

Recently a suit filed in supreme court, Trenton, N. J., by minority interests, and Supreme Court Justice Campbell issued an order directing Mr. Belt and other officers to show cause on May 5 why the election should not be set aside and a new one held.

Named Regent

Raps Choice Of Wilkie As U. W. Regent

Wylie Calls Appointment "Mistake" Made by Governor La Follette

Madison—(AP)—Gov. Philip LaFollette's appointment of Harold M. Wilkie, Madison attorney, to the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents was termed "Just one of the mistakes in men that every governor makes and regrets," by Deputy Attorney General Fred M. Wylie in a radio speech at Poyette yesterday.

Mr. Wylie is campaign manager for Justice Chester A. Fowler, Mr. Wylie was speaking in behalf of the candidacy of Attorney General John Reynolds for the supreme court.

"Every governor has this experience," Wylie said in reference to the governor's "mistake." "The use of Wilkie's appointment to make it appear that he is a Progressive, and in a way speaks for the Progressives, is unethical and a false pretense. Wilkie is not a Progressive and he speaks for no one in the supreme court campaign but himself and his insurance company clients."

Attorney Wilkie was one of the prosecutors in the ouster case of former Gov. Walter Kohler. Deputy Wylie said he was appointed one of the state's attorneys "because he was a conservative and he served as such attorney for pay."

"And the first result of his connection with the Kohler case was a delay of five months for the drafting of a complaint that covered no more ground than the one I gathered the information for and drafted in five days," Wylie continued. "The result of this delay was that Governor Kohler served out his term and the supreme court refused to decide his case."

PROMINENT ATTORNEY TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Madison—(AP)—The body of Leo L. Slesbecker, Madison attorney and a cousin of Gov. Philip LaFollette, was found hanging in his home here today by members of his family. He was the son of the late Chief Justice Robert L. Slesbecker, of the state supreme court.

Members of his family said Mr. Slesbecker suffered a nervous breakdown a year ago and had undergone treatment. Mr. Slesbecker was a partner of the late Michael E. Olbrich, former member of the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents, who committed suicide by hanging more than a year ago.

CHAPLIN GUEST OF DUKE

British Speed King Has Close Call During Race

Brooklands, England—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, world's motor car speed king, looked death in the eye for a few seconds today while an almost unmanageable racing car carried him along the steeply banked track at Brooklands at 100 miles an hour.

Competing in a handicap event at the opening day of racing on the Brooklands Auto Racing club program, Sir Malcolm was just completing the first lap of a 12 mile race when the rod holding the front wheels in position broke. As the spectators lining both sides of the track gasped in horror, Sir Malcolm fought the careening car along the steeply banked track as the other competitors roared past and brought it to a halt without mishap. If the car had gone off the track it probably would have meant death both to himself and many spectators.

Campbell said it was one of the closest calls he'd ever had.

"I was braking, preparatory to taking a turn," he said, "and suddenly I heard a terrific crash and the front wheels locked. I was doing well over 90 miles per hour and I don't know how I held the car on the track. Somehow I managed to pull her in. It was a ghastly experience. I suppose my luck holds."

The broken rod lashed about as Campbell fought the car to a standstill, tearing the spokes out of one of the front wheels.

Sir Malcolm was asked when he came to the United States last January to attempt to set a new world's automobile speed record, if he never feared the death might overtake him in one of his mad dashes along a track or the sands of Daytona Beach.

"I've seen it in front of me so many times," he said then, "I'm a fatalist. You never go before your time. If my time is up I'm ready to go. There's no use grousing."

SLOW CAMPAIGN WILL END WITH TUESDAY VOTE

Complexion of Next City Council, County Board Depends on Election

The last ripple of election talk will fade away tomorrow, when mounds of pink and white ballots dropped in tin grey election boxes will end all speculation and determine the complexion of the next city council, county board, school board and judicial bench.

Like a sea left churning by the departure of a huge vessel, the spring campaign started out shortly after the first of the year with great growling and churning, but little by little as the months sped on the upset waters began settling back into undulating waves, then widening ripples, and finally—unbroken calmness.

The spring race started out with a long list of entries—the largest in years—and all indications pointed to a close race. However, right after the primary election buzz seemed to have suffered from frost-bite and the mention of the chance of this or that candidate brought forth about as much argument as a statement about the weather. Bonfires have been smudging in the Third and Fifth wards, but in the other sections of the city speculation has been decidedly lethargic. Nevertheless a large vote is expected tomorrow if the weather continues favorable.

Voters will check three ballots, a white one carrying the names of aldermanic, supervisor and school commissioner candidates, another white one with the names of judicial aspirants, and a pink ballot bearing the referendum question on the issue of automobile license.

Incumbents Favored

General sentiment seems to be that all incumbents will be returned to their seats in the common council by large majorities. However the vote goes, there will be at least one

CAR PLUNGES INTO RIVER; SIX DROWN

Two Others Rescued After Machine Goes Over Embankment

Chester, Ill.—(AP)—A coroner's jury was called today to investigate the drowning of six persons, including an entire family of father, mother and three children, here last night when a motor car in which they were riding plunged down an embankment and into the Mississippi river. Two other occupants of the car were rescued.

John Maness of St. Louis, driver of the car, started down the embankment, which leads to a ferryboat landing, but had gone only a short distance when he discovered the boat was in the middle of the stream. Upon seeing the car, attendants of the boat signaled they would return to the Illinois side, but Maness appeared to lose control of the vehicle and it plunged ahead at rapid speed.

Attaches of the ferry rescued Maness and Allen Brooks, who managed to free themselves from the car, a coach, and made futile attempts to pull Mrs. Maness and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carney and their three children from the water. Early today all of the bodies, with the exception of that of one of the Carney children, had been recovered.

The party was en route to Perryville, Mo., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Maness' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hager, and to help Samuel Maness, who lives with his grandparents, celebrate his eight birthday. All occupants of the car lived in St. Louis.

BLACKMER ALSO LOSES PLEA IN CONTEMPT CASE

Former Interior Secretary Must Pay $100,000 and Serve Year

GUilty OF TAKING BRIBE $60,000 to Be Paid by Blackmer for Refusal to Return from France

Washington—(AP)—A sentence of one year in jail and $100,000 fine against Albert B. Fall, former interior secretary, was affirmed today by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

At the same time the court upheld the decision of a lower court under which Harry M. Blackmer was fined $60,000 for contempt of court in refusing to return from France, to appear as a witness in the oil trials of Harry F. Sinclair and Fall.

Fall was convicted of accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny for a lease granted the California oil man to naval oil reserves while Fall was secretary of the Interior.

At the conclusion of a lengthy decision in which he quoted liberally from arguments in the lower court case, Associate Justice Josiah A. Van Orsdel, of the court of appeals said simply:

"The judgment is affirmed."

The decision against Blackmer was handed down by Associate Justice Charles H. Robb and upheld by the judgments of the lower court with the addition of costs.

Blackmer had devoted a large part of his decision to the contention by Fall's counsel that it was improper to admit in the Fall Doheny bribe case any evidence of transactions with Sinclair in making a lease of the Teapot Dome oil land in Wyoming.

Blackmer's guilt of failing to heed a subpoena and fined $30,000 on each of the charges. The action was taken under the Walsh act permitting the government to prosecute property of any citizen who refused to return from abroad to test for the government in a criminal case.

The law was attacked as unconstitutional by Blackmer's attorneys and was upheld by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in the District of Columbia Supreme court.

Blackmer went abroad two years before he was summoned to appear before a government witness in the oil scandal cases and maintained that he had given up residence in the United States and had established residence in Paris.

After the first refusal to return the government filed contempt proceedings against him and seized $100,000 in bonds belonging to Blackmer. The law permitted that amount to be seized as the maximum but when Blackmer was found guilty the court assessed his fine on each case at $30,000.

Upholding the constitutionality of the Walsh act permits the government to compel witnesses needed in criminal cases to return from abroad even though the witness is outside the jurisdiction of the court. Blackmer's counsel contended the law was unconstitutional because it permitted him to be tried in his absence and extended the power of the court beyond the territorial limits of the country.

Blackmer was summoned as a government witness after it was found that he as well as Sinclair had received Liberty bonds in a deal through which the Continental Trading company of Canada had bought oil and resold it to companies which the group represented.

The government wanted to know where Sinclair got the bonds which later went to Fall, former secretary of the Interior.

After Sinclair was found not guilty of conspiring with him, Fall was convicted and sentenced to one year in jail and to pay $100,000 for accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny.

Doheny, a wealthy oil promoter, was charged with bribing Fall to induce the secretary to give Doheny's company a lease to the Elk Hills, Calif., naval oil reserve but he was acquitted by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme court.

HUCKINS' APPEAL IS DELAYED UNTIL MAY

Des Moines, Iowa—(AP)—Hearing of the appeal of Elmer S. Huckins of Hancock, Wis., from a conviction for cheating by false pretenses has been delayed until the May term of the Iowa Supreme court.

The delay was made upon the petition of Huckins' attorneys, who said the press of other court business would prevent them from appearing before the supreme court April 7, the date originally set for the hearing.

Chicago Waiting For Voters' Verdict On World's Fair Mayor

BITTER BATTLE ENDS TUESDAY AT BALLOT BOX

Both Cermak and Thompson Forces Are Confident of Victory

Chicago—(P)—Who is going to be Chicago's world's fair mayor? One more day of a bombardment of words and the voters will decide the question tomorrow, choosing between William Hale Thompson, Republican, and Anton J. Cermak, Democrat, immigrant Czech-Slovakian who came up from coal mining to a position of power in politics.

Confidence radiated from both sides as the rival candidates pushed their campaigns. A. J. Cermak, pausing for Easter Sunday, Cermak told his audiences that he felt he would win by the largest vote ever given a mayoralty candidate in Chicago. At the same time he announced that if he is elected he would resign from his office as chairman of the county board before becoming a mayor. Thompson headquarters issued a statement in which Mrs. Bertha Bauer, Republican national committeewoman was quoted as saying he would be reelected by from 100,000 to 125,000.

Whatever the result, it is bound to be unusual in Chicago politics.

Cermak Born Abroad
If Thompson wins it will give him a longer term than any of his predecessors, as he already served twice as mayor. If Cermak is victorious it will put into the mayor's chair for the first time, a man who was not born on American shores.

Thompson has served 12 years. So did Carter H. Harrison, Jr.—four two-year ones and a four-year. The first Carter Harrison, assassinated on the closing day of the 1893 world's fair, served ten years—five two-year terms.

Cermak, born near Prague, Czechoslovakia, came to America as a child; worked as a young man in downstate Illinois coal mines; came to Chicago and built a cartage business in firewood; entered politics and rose to head of the county board. He was a pupil of the late Roger Sullivan and inherited the toga of leadership upon George B. Brennan's death.

The campaign, compared with the primary of last February, has been quiet, although a slight touch of violence was reported last night when a powder bomb was exploded between two apartment buildings, in one of which resides Joseph Sikorski, a candidate for alderman. Both buildings were slightly damaged.

NEW INTERPRETATION OF ELECTRICAL CODE

Notification of a new interpretation of a section of the new state electrical code has been sent to all electricians of the city by Louis Euehke, city electrician. According to the code committee of the International Association of Electrical Inspectors, a one-inch conduit for electric range services and short runs can be used instead of the 1 1/2 inch conduit. The use of the smaller conduit will lower the cost of installation.

Noyes, itinerant coordinator of the pulp and paper industry with headquarters at Appleton vocational school, will leave next weekend for St. Louis, Mo., to attend the annual regional conference of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, April 13, 14, 15 and 16. Representatives are expected from many mid-western trade schools.

In U. W. Show

Here is one of the "girls" who will be seen in 33rd annual production of the Haresfoot club of the University of Wisconsin this year. The club will present its show next Thursday afternoon and evening at Brin theatre, Menasha. The "girls," of course, are all men.

HARESFOOT CLUB PRESENTS SHOW NEXT THURSDAY

University of Wisconsin Organization to Appear at Menasha

Madison—Known as the last surviving tradition of the University of Wisconsin, the Haresfoot club, which has seen the rise and fall of many campus customs since its inception in 1898, continues in its way with "It's a Gay Life," 33rd annual production, which will play at the Brin theatre on Thursday for matinee and evening performances.

This year the show has been changed in form so that Haresfoot would be the first college musical comedy club to present an intimate musical revue, the most modern form of musical comedy. The ability to vary its productions from year to year as well as to be able to offer innovations has been the basis upon which the club has worked.

Original work has always been a keynote of Haresfoot productions. Musical tunes by undergraduates accompany lyrics and stories which are similarly student work. Alumni members of the Haresfoot club maintain their interest through an alumni organization, the officers of which provide the thread of coordination from year to year. The latter, however, do not attempt to supersede the students.

Thus variety and coordination from year to year are offered by the officers of the Haresfoot club as the reason for the success of the Haresfoot club and its productions, based upon the "All our girls are men, yet everyone's a lady" idea. Even though other organizations of its type at other universities have gone out of existence, Haresfoot has continued. It is now the only touring college musical comedy club west of the Alleghenies. There are only two in the East, at Princeton and Pennsylvania.

MAHATMA TO GO ALONE TO ROUND TABLE SESSION

Gandhi Decides to Dispense With Help of His Former Colleagues

New Delhi, India—(P)—Mahatma Gandhi is considering a visit to the United States, either before or after the second round table conference in London. It was announced today, Gandhi believes, it was said, that India's liberation movement will receive greater world support if he visits the country which 150 years ago faced much the same problem which he claims is now confronting India.

The Mahatma feels, it was said, that if there is any western people who have an outlook on human problems similar to his is America. He believes that if he can strike a responsive chord in American hearts for Indian emancipation, his creed of universal non-violence as a weapon for winning what he considers the rights of man will receive a great impetus.

New Delhi—(P)—Mahatma Gandhi has decided to dispense with the aid of erstwhile colleagues at the forthcoming round table conference at London and will represent the Nationalist cause there by himself.

His decision has taken India and the Indian government entirely by surprise and has added fuel to the flame of his critics who have complained increasingly recently that he was assuming the role of dictator of the Nationalist movement.

It was Gandhi's first intention to take 12 persons with him to England for the round table conference, at which a future constitution for India is likely to reach well rounded form, instead of the 15 delegates to which the All India National Congress is entitled.

Last week he whittled the number who would go to five, explaining that more would make an unwieldy group. Since then he has informed his congress co-workers that since he had so much success as sole Nationalist representative, in dealing with Viceroy Lord Irwin in connection with the recent truce ending the civil disobedience campaign, he might repeat his success at London.

Moreover, he has argued, his hand would be strengthened at the second round table conference if most of the Nationalist cabinet, or working committee, remained in India to carry on the congress program, thus convincing the British government that the independence movement has come to stay and would increase in strength despite his absence.

No Need for Majority
He also has pointed out that this second round table conference will deal only in fundamentals and that the usual doctrine of strength in numbers will not hold since there is no question of a majority vote.

Several of Gandhi's associates, especially Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, are understood to be greatly disappointed at the decision which will deprive them of places at the London council table. Gandhi will take Miss

DESTRUCTION OF EASTER BUNNIES UNWELCOME TASK

Milwaukee—(P)—Plans were laid this Easter Monday for one of the Wisconsin Humane society's most unwelcome tasks—destruction of tiny, fluffy white Easter bunnies, gifts of parents to their children.

W. J. Dethloff, superintendent of the society, said the children would tire of their little pets within a week. They will be dropped into backyards, abandoned in parks or left at the roadside. Weakened by days of improper food, too much and too vigorous handling, they will die of exposure, he said.

"We have been trying to discourage the purchase of bunnies," Mr. Dethloff said. "We have succeeded in part, but hundreds still get the young pets for Easter."

"To save them from suffering, we are asking those who did obtain the bunnies to telephone the humane society before they dispose of them. We cannot keep them alive, but we can at least destroy them humanely."

Madeline Slade, daughter of an English admiral, as his personal attendant and secretary and probably will take with him, as advisers only, three or four members of the Nationalist cabinet and four or five experts on finance, constitutional law and the Indian states.

Mrs. Gandhi will be left in India to attend to her knitting and spinning. Despite a doctor's injunction which forbade him receiving any visitors, in view of the growing precariousness of his health, Gandhi over the Easter weekend continued his conferences with Viceroy Lord Irwin regarding the Moslem-Hindu relationship problem.

The solution of this vexatious question is no nearer than it has been for centuries and recent sanguinary communal rioting at Cawnpore has not helped matters. The two leaders hope fervently that they can announce a settlement before April 29, when the Moslems celebrate the feast of Bakrid. Thousands of cows, sacred to the Hindus, are slaughtered for the feast; the event almost always bringing communal rioting.

The principal point of difference between the Hindus and the Moslem minority is on electorates, the Hindus being willing for establishment of joint electorates and the Moslems holding out for separate electorates. The viceroy Sunday made an impassioned plea to a score of Moslem leaders asking a compromise on the question, stating that if one was not forthcoming, chances of success of the second round table conference would be jeopardized.

MUCH INTEREST IN SPEECH TILT AT HIGH SCHOOL

Post-Crescent's Oratorical Contest to Be Held Friday Night

An interest unusual in an event of this nature is being aroused in the Appleton Post-Crescent oratorical contest at Appleton high school next Friday evening, April 10. The unusual character of the prizes and the number of contestants is responsible for this large interest.

The contest, starting at 8 o'clock, is open to the public and everyone is invited to attend. Judge Fred V. Heinemann of the county court is to preside and there will be a brief musical program in connection with the talks.

The 11 contestants represent Menasha high school, St. Mary high school at Menasha, Shiocton high school, Waupaca high school, Weyauwega high school and Appleton high school. They are competing for four cash prizes aggregating $100 and the right to represent this newspaper in the state contest in Madison on April 24.

The contest is designed to increase the study of the constitution of the United States and inculcate respect for it. All the oration subjects must pertain to the constitution and contestants, as a result are obliged to carefully study this document. The talks will discuss various phases of its adoption and interpretation.

Enrollments Still Open In Gardening

Enrollments for the class in landscape gardening still will be accepted at Appleton vocational school this evening. The class opened last Monday evening at the trade school auditorium with 118 persons enrolled. The course is being sponsored under auspices of the University of Wisconsin extension division, vocational school and Appleton Post-Crescent.

Five lectures on landscape gardening remain on the schedule. Dr. Franz Aust of the university horticulture department is the instructor and lecturer. He illustrates his lectures with stereopticon slides. The cost of each of the remaining five lectures will be approximately 20 cents, or $1 for the five. People have enrolled from Appleton, Green Bay, Neenah, Menasha, Hortonville and Kaukauna.

In his lecture tonight Dr. Aust will deal almost entirely with landscape gardening. He will outline plans for laying out beautiful gardens and home grounds; discuss methods of pruning trees and shrubs and outline methods of planting various kinds of flowers and shrubs.

The opening lecture last week was designed to give a background for the course.

Slight Cold Keeps British Ruler From Easter Fetes

London—(P)—Inconvenienced by a slight cold, King George is remaining in the royal apartments at Windsor for the present in order to minimize likelihood of complications during one of the nation's Easter seasons England has known in years.

Indicative of the lightness with which the monarch's illness is regarded, his physicians decided not to issue a bulletin regarding his condition. He is being attended by one of the nurses who took him through his serious illness of two years ago, but one or more of these has been attached to the court since that time and no significance is attached to her present care.

His majesty remained up and about most of Easter Sunday, but did not attend the service in the castle chapel, which would have involved a walk through the drafty unheated corridors and passages of the old building.

Since the almost fatal illness which resulted from the king's standing bareheaded in the bad weather at the Armistice day celebration of 1928 every effort has been made to minimize the exposure to which he is subjected. Although fully recovered from that illness another bronchial attack would put a severe strain upon his physique.

His majesty was but one who remained shut in over Easter. Intermittent squalls kept many subjects, sounder physically than their monarch, at their friends. The customary parades of Easter toggery and doggerly were shunned and, two hardy, slickered bobbies alone paraded Hyde Park's famous stretches.

The length and breadth of the country were strewn with bedraggled bespattered hikers, bicycle riders, and motorists who fled London in search of sunshine but found instead only much mud of the jolly old England variety.

URGE PURCHASE OF HOME GROWN ALFALFA SEED

County Agent Gives Reason for Buying Local Product

An appeal has been made by Gus Sell, county agent, to farmers of Outagamie county who are planning to purchase alfalfa seed this spring to buy their seed locally. Either purchase from neighbors who have seed for sale or from commercial seed houses who are selling Outagamie-grown seed, Mr. Sell advises.

"There are many reasons why alfalfa seed for use in Outagamie should be purchased from local growers," he said. "Very nearly all of the Outagamie-grown alfalfa seed is of an exceptionally hardy strain which is accustomed to growing conditions in this vicinity. This seed is derived from original plantings of Grimm's seed and while it cannot be sold as Grimm's seed it can be relied on to be equally as good as seed shipped into this vicinity from outside the state."

Many county farmers last year raised large crops of good alfalfa seed. One large commercial seed house in Appleton purchased several big lots of the seed and in germination tests these have proven as high as 80 per cent, with 10 per cent hard seed. Hard seed is that which does not germinate as quickly as others. The lowest test found was 60 per cent, plus 30 per cent hard seed. In purchasing seed of this test the seed can be secured at a lower figure and it is only necessary to use more per acre, Mr. Sell said.

Another benefit of purchasing home-grown seed, Mr. Sell said, is that the money for this seed is kept in the county. In addition, home-grown seed is usually from $5 to $7 less per bushel than imported seed.

"There is considerable home-grown seed for sale in the county and many farmers have already sold large quantities of the crop," he said. "This seed is proven, having survived a winter or two of Outagamie-weather, and purchasers can feel assured that the seed is good. The seed is acclimated to the vicinity and will prove its value when tried."

FIREMEN CALLED OUT 4 TIMES OVER WEEKEND

The fire department was called out four times over the weekend to fires. Slight damage was caused about 11:15 Sunday morning when sparks from the chimney set fire to the roof of the residence of John Teck, 800 W. College-ave. The firemen put out the blaze before serious damage resulted. About 11 o'clock Sunday morning the fire men were called to a fire on S. Benton-st. and about 4:50 Saturday afternoon they were called to a grass fire at 1318 Rogers-ave. About 8 o'clock Saturday night the department was summoned to Burke's Battery shop, 111 N. Walnut-st, when oil from a stove leaked onto the floor and started burning. The blaze was put out before the department arrived.

POUR CONCRETE FOR NEW P. O. THIS WEEK

Workmen for the Greunke Brothers Construction company, who have charge of the excavation for Appleton's new post office at the corner of Superior and Washington-sts, were expected to complete the excavation today, according to W. H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster here. Excavating which started two weeks ago, was slightly delayed by the recent snowstorm. Workmen this week were expected to start building forms for the foundation, and it was thought that pouring of concrete might start late this week or early next week. A large crew of men will be needed when pouring of concrete is started. About 15 men are now employed.

CLINTONVILLE MAN CLAIMS BANKRUPTCY

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed by August J. Plette, Clintonville, in federal court at Milwaukee and referred to Charles H. Forward, referee in bankruptcy at Oshkosh, for administration. Plette's liabilities total $1,808.53, with notes which ought to be paid by others totaling $67. The assets include stock in trade, $57.20; household goods, $114; debts due on open account, $2.65; property in reversion, $40. Exemption is claimed for property worth $266.

YOUNG MAN INJURED WHEN CARS COLLIDE

Paul Fiebelkorn, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Fiebelkorn, 945 E. Eldorado-st, was injured about 9:45 Saturday night when the car in which he was riding figured in a collision with a machine driven by Edwin Wilton of the Central Motor Car company. Fiebelkorn was riding in a car driven by Arthur Engel, 1827 N. Morrison-st, which was going north on Morrison. Wilton was driving east on Hancock-st. Fiebelkorn, who suffered lacerations on the back and the right leg, was taken to a doctor's office in the police car and later removed to his home. Both cars were badly damaged.

If present plans of the Appleton Yacht club materialize, boating in this part of the Fox river valley will be revived with vigor next summer. Among the major projects the club is considering to create interest in the sport is a regatta. A five mile course will be laid out with buoys in Lake Butte des Morts. The start and finish line will be at the lower end of Stroeb's Island.

The course laid out in this manner will give spectators a full view of the race from the island and also from the east shore.

Entries for the regatta are expected from Green Bay, De Pere, Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac. The outboard motor competition will be in four classes, A, B, C, and D, according to horsepower and weight of boats.

Award Trophies

A trophy, probably in the form of a silver loving cup, will be awarded the winner of the free-for-all outboard race, which includes all classes. A trophy also will be awarded to the winner of the inboard motor boats which calls for not more than 100-horsepower craft.

The club trophy will go to the club or group scoring the most points in outboard, inboard, and cruiser races. A club will have to win the cup for three consecutive years to secure permanent possession of it.

The cruiser race will include boats of any length, but not more than 100-horsepower motors. There also will be merchandise prizes for second, third, and fourth places in all races. Although power boat races have not been held in this locality for the past 15 to 20 years, it is believed enthusiasm can be raised in the Fox river valley because of the increasing highway travel.

Boat owners have been preparing for the approaching season. Max Klitzke, owner of the "Lady Jane," a 50-foot cabin cruiser which he purchased at Oshkosh last fall, has been working on the boat during the past two months. The bottom has been repainted, and with a few more days of warm weather the inside and decks will be stained.

Owens Two Boats

The "Lady Jane" is driven with a 60-horsepower Doman motor. Its lighting system is driven by a 4-cylinder Universal motor. Mr. Klitzke also owns a 25-foot glass enclosed boat with a six cylinder "Knight" motor.

Rudolph Foster, better known to club members and boat enthusiasts as "Rudy," has been with the club for many years. He has been a great follower of the sport since the one cylinder motor was as high priced as the boat itself.

He owns two boats. His first choice is a 30-foot cruiser named "Charon," driven with a Universal 77-horsepower motor. The run-about, which has not been christened as yet, will be completed within the next month. It will be driven by a 100-horsepower 12 cylinder Packard motor. He expects to make 30-miles an hour with it.

"Miss Appleton" or better known to Oshkosh racers as "Miss Universal," is owned by Edward Foster. He has overhauled the motor and put the hull into shape during the winter. He expects to get the boat back to its old 42-mile per hour gait next summer.

Old Prize Winner

This boat has won several first places in Oshkosh and Green Bay during her racing days with John Luft of the Universal plant of Oshkosh at her wheel. Ed, who purchased the boat several years ago, experienced some trouble with a "sprung" bottom which cut down the speed considerably.

"The Silver Bullet," owned, operated and damaged by Andy Forster in about four days last season, was likely contender for "Miss Appleton's" crown had it not been for hitting the wake of a cruiser and damaging the step. She was powered with an eight-cylinder "King" motor. The "Red Wing," an old timer on the river and formerly owned by Carl Kempf, is now owned by Harold Staedt. He has installed a modern Ford motor and will experiment with super-charger this summer. The boat is 26 feet long and has fair sea worthiness.

Andy Arft, who last year made his initial appearance on the waters of the Fox river with a 20-foot run-about boat powered with a 6-cylinder motor, has changed to a light 4-cylinder motor. Mr. Arft says he can attain the same speed because of lighter weight.

W. H. Falatick, owner of a sleek 20-foot run-about, has had considerable trouble with motors, and although he takes a great interest in the sport, his business interests occupy most of his time, according to club members.

C. S. Manville, owner of several boats, spends most of his time on them. He makes a business of giving boat rides on Sunday afternoons and taking fishing parties up the river during the week.

BOARD ASKED TO PURCHASE TELULAH PARK

Site Is One of Historical Spots of Fox River Valley

The park board has been asked by the city council to negotiate the purchase of Telulah park for use as a city park. The movement to acquire the property for park purposes is being promoted by the two Fourth ward aldermen, R. P. McGillan and C. J. Wassenberg, who feel that the site would be in ideal one for a city park, and of especial value as a playground for Fourth ward residents.

The site being proposed, formerly the old race track, overlooks the entire north side of the city. There is about a 350-frontage along the river, an abundance of virgin timber, good parking facilities for cars, in addition to the old half-mile race track which could easily be converted into a cinder path for track meets. The property is owned by the Green Bay Mississippi Canal company.

One of the historical spots of the Fox River valley, the old Telulah park has an appeal that would enhance its value as a park. It is pointed out, Telulah springs, about which clings the old legend of the Indian Maid Telulah, lies at the foot of the park, and along the east side of the site runs the old military trail used for the transportation of provisions to Fort Howard at Green Bay during the French and Indian wars.

FOREIGN STUDENTS TO TALK AT CHURCH

Four foreign students of the University of Wisconsin will be guests of the Congregational church and Lawrence college the week end of April 11 and 12. A woman student from Japan and men from China, Turkey and the Virgin Islands will deliver addresses Sunday and Monday. They will be accompanied by the Rev. Donald Webster student pastor at the Congregational church at Madison.

On Sunday morning the students will conduct the 11 o'clock service at the Congregational church, address the Men's club and the departments of the Church School. In the afternoon they will be honored at a reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Peabody, and in the evening they will talk at an informal meeting of young people at the church. They will address the college students at Memorial chapel Monday morning.

Child Must Use, Spell Words Today

The modern school youngster may not know how to spell Meophistopheles, Constantinople, hypochondriac, malevolence, pachydermous, salicylism, Tyrannosaurus, or splanchnotosis, but he knows the meaning of and how to pronounce and spell route, devote, devout, comprehend, distinguish, appearance, and all the other words he is apt to run across in his reading.

In the days way back when, spelling was spelling and nothing else but. Today spelling takes in spelling, pronunciation, meaning, and diction, and the child learns not only how to spell but how to use words. There are both oral and written spelling lessons. In addition the never obsolete "spelling-down" while in the old days practically all spelling lessons were oral. Spelling books are used now, an improvement upon the old method of lists of words selected from books read by the youngsters.

In the junior high schools, where spelling is still taught, there is a list of 100 words called "Demons in Spelling." This type of word, however, is kept out of the grade school spelling books, as all effort is concentrated on teaching the youngsters how to spell, pronounce and use the words they come in contact with most frequently.

Alphabetical cards, out of which children may form words in the picture puzzle manner, are used in the lower grades to keep children busy while the teacher is devoting her time to other lessons or pupils.

Assistant State Attorney To Talk At Farmers' Mass Meeting

GO-OP PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED ON WEDNESDAY

Expect Between 500 and 600 at Gathering at Courthouse

R. M. Orchard, an assistant state attorney, will be the principal speaker at the mass meeting of dairy farmers at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the courthouse. Mr. Orchard will discuss The Truth, in connection with the Pure Milk Products Cooperative association, a branch of which is being organized in Appleton.

The Madison man, who gives legal advice to the department of markets and agriculture, will discuss the contracts which farmers make when they join the organization. He will point out the benefits of this system. Mr. Orchard will cover every legal phase of the proposed organization and its contracts so that all farmers will clearly understand the proposition.

A committee of one hundred farmers, appointed at a previous mass meeting Wednesday night, Gus Sell, county agent, is assisting in arrangements for the session. Before the mass meeting Mr. Orchard will make out the contracts with the executive committee of the proposed Appleton branch. He will discuss with this committee details of organization of the Appleton group. This meeting will be held at Mr. Sell's office at the courthouse.

INVITE FARMERS
A special effort is being made by the farm committee to have dairy farmers from the vicinity of Appleton, Neenah, Menasha and Kaukauna attend. Farmers who already have signed contracts and those who have not are invited to this meeting. Milk dealers and their attorneys, who have been giving farmers advice on contracts also are invited to attend.

This movement, according to the committee, is not designed to interfere with the cheese industry of the district. Only farmers whose milk is going into some other outlet than cheese are being sought as members of the new cooperative. Patrons of cheese factories can work for more effective marketing of their finished product by joining the Cheese Producers' federation, the committee points out.

Other speakers at the meeting Wednesday night will be R. P. Ames, an official of the new state cooperative; and W. L. Witte, of the state department of agriculture. The meeting Wednesday evening was postponed from Saturday, March 28, when a severe snowstorm prevented holding the original gathering.

POLICE STILL HOLD PAIR IN CAR THEFT

Police this morning were still holding William Van Tol, 19, Little Chute, and Edward Schackelford, 16, Oxford, Kansas, pending the decision of what charges will be placed against them. The youths were arrested last Friday night by Fred Arndt, motorcycle officer, on a charge of driving a coupe with four people. Investigation led to the discovery that the car they were driving had been stolen early last week in Junction City, Kansas.

Under examination the two young men admitted they had deserted from the United States Army at Fort Riley, Kansas, and stole the car in Junction City. Police Chief George T. Prim is still awaiting word from Kansas to determine what action will be taken against the pair. It is likely, however, that they will be sent back to Kansas to face charges.

$8,000 Loss As Hardware Store Burns

Fire, believed to have started from a defective chimney, destroyed the J. P. Hansen Hardware company store at Sheridan about 10 o'clock Saturday night. The blaze was discovered by passersby, and an emergency call was sent to the Scandinavian fire department, nine miles away. The department reached Sheridan 17 minutes after receiving the call.

The flames, however, had made such headway that the department merely worked to keep the flames from spreading to nearby buildings. Several times sparks from the blazing building set fire to shingle roofs of nearby buildings, but the small fires were always put out before damage resulted.

In about an hour the two-story frame structure, which was about 50 feet wide and 70 feet long, had been razed. Very little of the stock in the building was saved, according to H. O. Madsen, one of the partners. J. O. Hansen, the other partner, is Waupaca co-undersheriff. Mr. Madsen said the loss was estimated at about $8,000, partly covered by insurance. The company probably will rebuild at once, Mr. Madsen said, although no definite plans have yet been made.

The fire started in the attic near a chimney, Mr. Madsen said, leading to the belief that a defective chimney caused the blaze.

YOUTH INJURED BY BLANK SHELL DIES OF WOUND

Guardsman Accidentally Hurt Last Thursday; Plan Military Funeral

Arthur D. Hahnen, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hahnen, Sr., 831 W. Packard-st., who was accidentally shot with a blank cartridge while helping clean up the basement of Armory G Thursday night, died Saturday evening. An operation had been performed to remove a blood clot on his spine, which had caused a partial paralysis.

Hahnen, a bugler in Co. D, 127th Infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, and two other enlisted men, together with Capt. Clyde P. Schroeder, commanding officer, had been working in the armory basement during the evening. As the men were preparing to leave Schroeder picked up an army rifle, which is part of the company's equipment, placed several blank shells in the gun, and was firing it when Hahnen, standing a few feet away, inadvertently was struck in the back.

The one eighth inch paper plug in the shell tore a rib from the boy's spine and entered his lung. He was taken immediately to the hospital, and although his condition always was considered serious, hopes were held out for recovery. The paralysis and blood clot forced attending physicians to operate.

Hahnen had been a member of Co. D, for more than a year. He will be buried with full military honors.

Active In Scouts
The youth also was actively identified with the boy scout movement in the valley, first at Menasha and later at Appleton. He was the first valley council scout to receive an Eagle scout badge, the highest award a boy can win in the scout organization. At that time he was a member of Troop 3, St. Thomas Episcopal church. Since coming to Appleton he was connected with Troop 4, the legion troop, as a member, and with troop 15, All Saints Episcopal church, as scout master. He also was a member of All Saints' church.

Survivors are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hahnen, Sr., three brothers, Harold of Chicago, and Jack and Billy of Appleton; one sister, Mrs. Norbert Keefe, Appleton; and his grandmothers, Mrs. David Harn, and Mrs. Caroline Hahnen, both of Menasha.

The body was taken from the Wichmann funeral home to the residence at 831 W. Packard-st. Monday afternoon. At 11 o'clock Wednesday morning it will lie in state at All Saints Episcopal church, until the funeral at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. L. D. Utts will be in charge of the services, and burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

F. L. Forward, 79, Succumbs After Long Illness — Was Pioneer of City

F. L. Forward, 79, formerly a mayor of Seymour, died at 3 o'clock Sunday morning at Seymour following a long illness. Mr. Forward, one of that city's pioneers, had played an active part in both the political and business life of the community. He served two terms as mayor and two terms as alderman. It was during his term as mayor that the city fire department was motorized.

Later he started the first coal business in the city and still later he opened the first cheese warehouse there. He operated this warehouse until about five years ago, when he retired from active business. The only survivors are a nephew, Ray Steward of Milwaukee; and a niece, Mrs. Rachel Koslinski of Hamilton, Ohio. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with the Masonic lodge, of which Mr. Forward had been a member, in charge.

WOMEN CANNOT CHANGE MINDS WHEN VOTING

The law has no mercy on the woman who changes her mind every half minute. A glance at the election laws reveals that a voter cannot consume more than five minutes in checking his ballot. It all compartments of the poll are filled, and that no more than three ballots can be spoiled—no matter how often a woman changes her mind. Election officials are vested with the power to prevent any person from "peeking" at another voter's ballot.

PAVED ROADS IN STATE REPORTED IN GOOD SHAPE

Motorists will find no difficulty in reaching almost any section of the state where there are paved roads, according to the weekly road report from the state highway department. Blue Skies Bring Out Bright Easter Parade

Under blue skies filled with sparkling sunlight, Appleton's Easter parade formed early Sunday morning and throughout the day strollers wandered hither and yon on the dry walks in the city. The bright colors and long skirts prescribed by Dame Fashion did much to brighten the parade, which was occasionally placed in sad danger of falling into somnolence by the great display of black, which is so popular this spring.

Man-fashion, one Appleton male said Monday morning that the Easter parade was almost funeral, with the exception of the girls who were wearing long colored party dresses with sport jackets. In reality, the "funeral" dresses were the smart black gowns of the season, the "party" dresses were the bright colored spring chiffons and the "sport" jackets were the new short fur coats being worn so universally this spring.

Everybody and his brother were out with new spring clothes yesterday, a crystallized refutation of the wailing cry of depression. Both ladies and men's apparel shops were kept busy last week supplying the public with its new Easter clothes.

Small furies of snow at 9 o'clock and midnight Saturday worried those who were eager to don their new togs—and reassured those who were due to wear their winter clothes—but apparently the high wind and few snowflakes were nothing more than a swaggering blast from Old Man weather.

COLD WINDS CHILL EASTER PARADERS

Temperatures, However, Fail to Dampen Ardor of Appleton's Fair Sex

Although Sunday morning dawned with a cloudless sky, a cool wind appeared from the northwest, but it failed to dampen the ardor of Appleton's fair sex as they appeared on College-ave for the annual Easter parade.

Skies were clear and the entire midwest was on the way. At 6 o'clock in the morning the mercury registered 23 degrees above zero.

Uncertain weather will prevail in Appleton and vicinity during the next 24 hours. Skies will be clear to night, but Tuesday they will be cloudy, the weatherman says.

The mercury is due for a drop to night. Winds are shifting in the west and southwest, a good indication that warmer weather is on the way.

At 6 o'clock Monday morning the mercury registered 25 degrees above zero while at noon it registered 48 degrees above.

INDUSTRY NOT ANXIOUS FOR CUT IN WAGES

Doak Regards Attitude of Some Banks at Greatest Present Menace

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1931 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—(CPA)—Judging by the comments of government officials, the wage cut menace is more of a prospect than a reality.

The secretary of labor, William Doak, says that no reports of important changes in wage scales have reached him and that in general he believes manufacturers and business men are keeping the agreement made with President Hoover during the conferences of December, 1929.

Commissioner Stewart of the bureau of labor statistics, agrees with Mr. Doak that there has been "no general or agreed upon" cut in wages, but he regards the attitude of some of the banks as the real threat at present rather than the attitude of manufacturers.

"The banks," he said, "are thinking in terms of the political economies of Adam Smith and are not progressing away from it, while the manufacturers are."

Those bankers having sizeable loans outstanding and owning long term bonds find a decreasing price level profitable with a 1926 dollar buying a $1.32 worth of goods.

"This is an influence," the commissioner continued, "for a drop to 1913 price levels would be a disaster to the banks were not promised that they would be paid in dollars worth $1.32."

Fear Instability Effects
The old-fashioned cure of wage reduction, according to the commissioner, is proposed always when there is any prospect of lower interest rates or dividends omissions. Fears that jobs may not be permanent are having an influence in diminishing purchasing power and the administration here feels that instability of wage levels is going to do far more damage to business than the wage cuts will ever benefit those who make them.

Out of some twelve thousand establishments, only 228 report wage decreases for the month ending Feb. 15. The totals are by no means alarming as yet and the administration feels it must focus public attention on the problem in order to prevent widespread reduction in wages.

The American Federation of Labor in its April survey of business, prepared for its membership, concurs in the view of the secretary of labor that unionism has kept its promise to avoid agitation for increases in pay and that strikes have been held at the minimum.

The federation argues that wage rates have never varied proportionately with price changes and that in most depressions the decline in wages rates in general has been very small. The federation does not accept the argument that the decline in the cost of living warrants wage reductions, declaring that the argument does not take into account time work and unemployment which has, of course, cut down the size of the individual budget.

The labor leaders are proclaiming a turn in the business tide and urging manufacturers and bankers not to adopt drastic measures at a time when the psychology of the country with reference to the depression is showing a manifest improvement.

In the above deal there can be no doubt that North obtained the final declaration of Three No Trumps at Contract or One No Trump at Auction.

The play of the hand really presents no difficulty to those who are well grounded in No Trump play and the probable splits of the various suits. Yet there are several points that should be brought to the attention of many players who are too prone to take early guesses. A little patience will often guide their play to better advantage. Even where a finesse should be taken, it is usually better to have an adversary make the first lead of the suit.

Where one of the hands has five or more cards in some suit that is readily establishable, the Declarer may often push a hand through by brute force, and thus prove that in many instances a suit type of hand held by one partner may prove very valuable to the other at a No Trump declaration.

In the above deal the suits are very evenly divided, both North's and South's hands, but it is not to be assumed that East and West also have their hands divided 4-3-3-3 as between suits.

Oppose Bingham Plan For Increased Income Taxes

Washington—(P)—Factional leaders of congress looked with little favor today on the proposal by Senator Bingham that income taxes be increased and extended to curb governmental extravagance.

The Connecticut Republican no sooner had made his statement favoring a blanket increase in levies and an extension to smaller incomes than responsible members of both the senate and house objected.

Senator Watson of Indiana—the Republican floor leader—said: "I am opposed to any further taxation because I don't think it is necessary under existing conditions."

Senator Norris of Nebraska, an independent Republican leader, asserted that while he would not object to a hike if the expected $700,000,000 deficit materialized, "the increase should be applied in inheritance taxes and on the higher brackets, or larger incomes."

Senator Harris of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the senate appropriations committee, said: "I am opposed to Senator Bingham's plan in toto."

Representative LaGuardia of New York, a house independent leader, predicts there would be an increase, but added: "There will be no lowering of the present tax exemption and that is just as certain as day following night. The tax increases in the next congress will be such that Senator Bingham and his half dozen in the senate surely will vote against."

Bingham's proposal was the first in discussion of the approaching $700,000,000 deficit to suggest tax demands be made on small incomes. Some legislators have said they would favor increasing the levies on bigger incomes while leaders of both parties and in both houses have insisted greater taxes will not be necessary.

Others have admitted that any agitation for a tax increase at the next session would be embarrassing to both parties because of the economic situation and the approaching presidential election.

President Hoover believes an increase will not be necessary if congress restricts appropriations. Republican Leader Tilson of the house thinks an increase is not now needed and should not become mandatory.

Members of both major parties have promised to cooperate to keep down expenditures at the next session, thus eliminating a need for more money.

ITALIAN COMPOSER WINS GERMAN FAVOR

Berlin—(P)—Giacomo Puccini, Italian maestro, has been elected by German opera-goers as their favorite composer of modern opera music drama.

A musical magazine, "Der Anbruch," ascertained the standing among the "moderns" by counting the performances of various works last season, eliminating from the computation all composers who died before 1900.

Puccini's score showed a total of 950 performances, with "Madame Butterfly" leading the list. Richard Strauss, German, was second with 497 performances to his credit, followed closely by Jaromir Weinberg, young Czechoslovakian, whose opera, "Schwanda, The Bagpipe Man" was heard 490 times.

COSTLY AIRPORT

New Orleans—This city is to have a lakefront airport which will cost about $1,500,000. Tentative plans call for a field of 300 acres with 20 hangars bordering on a semi-circular lake. A fill of 4,000,000 cubic feet will be necessary before the port can be completed. The lake will be surrounded by a breakwater 3000 feet long to provide calm water for seaplanes.

WITH A GRAIN OF SALT
Berlin—A rumor from the famous German Junkers works at Dessau has it that that plant is building a super-super airplane. It is described as one which will be able to travel at 700 miles an hour and reach New York in six hours. As yet no confirmation of this rumor has been had from Junkers officials.

MORE CAUTIOUS TONE ASSUMED BY BEAR GROUP

Menace of Too Much Company Finally Faced by Operators

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—

The professional element in Wall Street at the end of the week was just as bearish as ever but very much more cautious than it was a week ago. In the first place, it fears the greatest menace that operators face for the decline ever face—too much company. For eight successive sessions the market has declined and during that period the short interest increased until now it is becoming unwieldy.

Then the bear party notes certain aspects of the downward movement which provide "food for thought." One feature has been the way in which certain stocks have held up against weakness in the general list, while a few actually moved forward aggressively against the trend. These were not simply stocks which had "a good story"—that is to say, a background of increasing earnings in times of depression—but stocks which advanced under nothing more than pool operations. This does not happen in a real bear market, when the good go down with the bad and pool managers abandon the field.

Rail Stocks Quiet
Or, take the group of stocks which have been most persistently depressed, the railroad shares. There is no hint of earning improvement anywhere in the railroad field, nor has there been any sign of a rally in the average price of the railroad stocks. On the other hand there has been no sign of any large scale outside liquidation. It may come later, because the investors as distinguished from speculators take their time about going to the strong box, taking out their certificates and bringing them down to the market for sale.

The bear party continues to point to the agricultural situation with its unimproved price trend, to a more unfavorable outlook in Europe, to the letup in the rate of expansion of steel operations and always to the unsolved problem of over-production in the oil industry. They are not ready to admit that fundamental conditions have changed sufficiently to justify recovery in stocks except on technical grounds.

Watch Retail Trade
The minority and it might become a majority overnight) that take the optimistic view have arguments to offer. They are looking more closely to retail trade than to production figures and they profess to be much encouraged over reports from chain store and mail order organizations. They are still confident of recovery in the motor car industry, stressing the close balance being kept by the manufacturers between output and sales. They are impressed by the strong financial position of the leading units in the automobile business.

They put much reliance on the money situation. When stocks can be bought, paying unquestioned dividends, that yield more than sound bonds it is no time to become bearish, so runs the story. They watch the bond market closely, believing as is orthodox that advancing prices for fixed interest paying securities spell a revival in stocks. In this connection there is some concern about the treasury deficit. Exactly what it signifies with regard to the investment and speculative markets few are willing to say, but it does introduce a new element.

WISCONSIN LEADS IN CHEESE MAKING

State Produces Eight Times as Much as New York, Which Is Second

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin produced eight times as much cheese, with the exception of cottage, pot and bakers' cheese, as does New York the second dairy state in the nation, according to a recording received today from the bureau of the census, U. S. Department of commerce.

The last census revealed that Wisconsin produced 324,662,645 pounds of cheese other than cottage, pot and bakers' cheese in 1929 had a value of $67,531,330. Wisconsin produced 8,978,751 pounds of cottage, pot and bakers' cheese that had a value of $2,676,429.

New York was second in the production of all varieties of cheese except cottage, pot and bakers' having produced 47,764,227 pounds in 1929 with a value of $12,568,212. Illinois was third with 25,368,174 pounds which was valued at $5,539,360.

The total production of cheese, including cottage, pot, and bakers' cheese, in 1929 by manufacturers in the United States amounted to 606,305,602 pounds, valued at $119,006,230. These figures represent increases of 17 per cent and 8 per cent, respectively, as compared with 518,193,333 pounds, valued at $110,161,275, reported for 1927, the last preceding census year.

The 1929 total is made up as follows: American cheese, 397,842,435 pounds, valued at $88,544,788; Swiss, etc., 53,133,390 pounds, $12,075,845; cream, 35,983,062 pounds, $9,692,125; Italian, 8,579,239 pounds, $1,964,118; other varieties, 8,348,282 pounds, $2,682,990; cottage, pot and bakers' cheese, 97,022,744 pounds, $9,046,373.

Of the total for 1929, 541,076,329 pounds, valued at $110,928,689, was contributed by establishments engaged primarily in the production of cheese, and 65,238,473 pounds, valued at $8,122,533, by establishments in other industries which manufactured cheese as a secondary product.

Remember Her?

Movie fans, do you remember this famous star of the silent? She is the former Dorothy Dalton, now the wife of Arthur Hammerstein, New York theatrical producer, working with her daughter, Carol, looking in the sun at Sea Spray Beach, Palm Beach, Fla.

Princess Antoinette, one of the younger sisters of the reigning Duchess of Luxembourg. At the time he was 40 and she was only 19. He fell in love with her and, much to everybody's astonishment, their engagement was announced in the last year of the war. They were married in 1921.

Rupprecht's father, the late King Ludwig of Bavaria, married the Archduchess Marie Theresa of the Modena branch of the house of Austria-Este. She was a direct descendant of that Stuart King of England, Charles the First, whose subjects beheaded him when Cromwell won. Afterward, by special law, the royal line that succeeded to the throne of England, was descended from the sister of Charles the First, Princess Elizabeth, who married the Elector Palatine of the Rhine.

There always has been a small party in Great Britain which has remained true to the direct descendants of Charles the First and maintained that they were the real Stuarts who should be on the throne of England. King Ludwig's wife was called by them "Queen Marie." Her son, the present Rupprecht, was called "the Prince of Wales."

An astonishing incident occurred in 1887 when the youthful Prince Rupprecht came to London to be present at the golden jubilee celebration of Queen Victoria's reign. The young man was met at the railway station by the then Prince of Wales, afterwards King Edward Seventh. To everybody's embarrassment, a number of Jacobite enthusiasts cheered the younger man as their real king.

WINTER NO BAR
Washington—The air mail must go through, no matter what the weather, and the service has upheld that slogan exceptionally well this winter. Except for periodic fogs over certain lines, air mail schedules have been maintained in almost unqualified fashion. Earl B. Wardworth, superintendent of the air mail service, reports.

RUPPRECHT MAKES NO MOVE TO CLAIM BRITISH THRONE

Ex-crown Prince of Bavaria Now Lives Life of Semi-retirement

BY MILTON BRONNER
London—The other morning a tall, soldierly-looking man, with gray hair and close-clipped moustache, stood about the flying field at Croyden waiting for the airplane that was to take him to Germany. His scanty luggage soon was stowed away, and the only person who bade him farewell was one of the air company officials.

Fellow travelers wondered about the identity of this distinguished but lonely-looking figure. They could have guessed, however, that there are many persons who believe he has a rightful claim to the British throne.

He was no less a figure than former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, head of the ancient and royal house of Wittelsbach. And there has been a time when, if he had been leaving London, cordons of police would have been holding back the throngs of well-wishers and gawping crowds while the crown prince and his family gathered there to say their farewells. But the war changed all that, and Rupprecht now lives in obscurity.

Did Not Visit King
To London Rupprecht came incognito to visit the exhibition of Persian art, he being the patron of the German committee which contributed articles to the show. Then he spent a week with an old English friend and visited Oxford University, and Shakespeare's home town of Stratford-on-Avon.

Whereupon one of the London papers published a sensational story to the effect that his real purpose in coming to England was to try to effect a reconciliation with the King and Queen of England, but that he had been snubbed for his pains.

Your correspondent called up the publicity man at the residence of the King, Mrs. Buckingham Palace, and has a publicity man. Attention was called to the Sunday publication. The reply came cool and clear: "The story is a feat of imagination. There was no attempt to get into touch with the royal family. The visitor may have hoped for an invitation to the Palace. Many visitors do. Many are disappointed."

Bang went the phone. That was that.

The chances are very much against Rupprecht having hoped for a reconciliation with the royal pair of England. In the first place, even here in England there are people who claim that Rupprecht is the rightful person to occupy the British throne. In the next place, there is the memory of the war.

Had Military Ability
Rupprecht, who became a German Field Marshal in command of the German army, is one of the very few men of princely rank who proved himself to be a commander of real military ability. And fate played him strange tricks in the assignments the General German Staff gave him. Early in 1914 his army besieged Antwerp, one of the chief towns of Belgium. And the Queen of Belgium happens to be his sister-in-law.

Later he was engaged in fighting the British armies. Thus he, who might have been King of England, was fighting the enemies of that country. During the war, it was alleged that in many of his orders to his troops he was savagely critical of the British.

Later Rupprecht operated in the vicinity of Nancy in eastern France. The Allies put his name on the black list of the "war criminals" who were to be put on trial when the war was won.

Then fate played another queer trick on Rupprecht. His first wife had been a Bavarian princess whose sister was the Queen of Belgium. She died in 1912. When the World War broke out, not only did the German armies violate the neutrality of Belgium, but without even asking "by your leave," they marched through the little independent Duchy of Luxembourg.

The German hand lay heavily on that tiny land. Rupprecht met the

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO TOMORROW?

All day Tuesday thousands of places conveniently located will be open to receive and record the will of the people.

And many will vote.

Those will vote who always do their duty, who are always the first to answer a cry of distress or of danger, who never try to shoulder the little burdens of life upon others. We prefer to think that it will be the manly who vote and the slovenly who do not.

And the latter will probably, as usual, spend the rest of the year complaining about the government.

Under stress of keen interest or great excitement we often have a heavy poll whereas we should have it as a matter of course at every election.

It becomes an alarming affair when from 40 to 60 per cent of the qualified voters don't care enough about consequences to walk a few blocks and cast their ballots.

But the obligation of a newspaper is neither to become cross nor petulant with the frailties of human nature. Its purpose must be to persist in a course that is obviously right, and time after time attempt to arouse the flagging interest of the people to their most precious heritage.

Strange, it is not, how we listen in rapt attention to those lines of Pierpont, and at times do little else than listen.

"A weapon that comes down as still
As snowflakes fall upon the sod;
But execute a freeman's will,
As lightning does the will of God;
And from its force, nor doors, nor locks
Can shield you; 'tis the ballot-box."

THE HEROES ARE FOUND

The two artillerymen who had the bold effrontery to walk up and shake hands with the President of France and his wife and join the party of General Pershing who was showing the president the ruins of the village of Sampigny after the battle of St. Mihiel, have come to life.

Because of General Pershing's known reputation for discipline and the strictest observance of the rules of military etiquette, his narration of this occurrence in his memoirs was immediately doubted by members of the A. P. E. and the opinion was generally expressed that if any artillerymen with both hair and dirt in their ears, actually joined the party of the most high and elect in the manner described by the general, due credit should be given them as by far the greatest heroes of the war.

Sergeant Louis H. Miller, a New York manufacturer of ladies' clothing, identifies himself as one of the Chesterfield artillerymen, and tells about his buddy, a corporal in the same outfit, who was his companion upon that memorable day.

The fact that in his war history the general has made comment on what to the lay mind would seem to be an event of extreme mediocrity, stamps it as one of unusual character in his own mind. That the two soldiers "put it over" is due perhaps not only to the presence of President Poincare, but also to the very boldness of the act itself. Army regulations and discipline during the war were very strict regarding any social contact between enlisted men and high ranking officers. It is probable that had anyone less distinguished than the French president and his wife been present, the nervous sergeant and his corporal friend would have received a good "dressing down," with plenty of snapping teeth, flashing eyes and throaty growls.

At any rate the two soldiers have been immortalized in Pershing's story and the record stands as an actual occurrence, unbelief of the army proletariat to the contrary notwithstanding.

SOME CHANGES ARE NEEDED

"This is the most gigantic frame-up since the crucifixion of Christ," blasphemously uttered one of the defense counsels in the trial of Leo Brothers at Chicago.

Why the party represented by a speaking lawyer is so often "fair and square and but a victim of circumstances," the opposite party "a scamp and a scoundrel" and the whole case merely "a gigantic frame-up," is a matter that may not interest the people greatly because, of course, they do not believe it, but it should interest the courts and the legal profession in dealing with trials in something approaching a sane and reasoned manner instead of so constant a reference to the extremes.

Frame-ups by district attorneys are about as frequent as teeth in chickens.

As a matter of fact the district attorney occupies a quasi-judicial position. He must make up his mind whether a crime has been committed, and if so, whether the evidence at hand proves the guilt of some particular party.

The laws restrain and hobble him. His is the burden at every turn of the road.

This was further demonstrated in the same trial when Brothers after listening to eight witnesses identify him as a foul assassin, determined to keep his mouth shut and not even answer the accusation.

He did not have to take the stand simply because the law provides that no man need testify against himself which in practical application means he need not testify at all.

Most states, Wisconsin among them, have the rule that a mere plea of not guilty is a denial of the charge; that the court must so instruct the jury trying the case; that if the prosecutor even mentions the fact to the jury that the defendant did not himself take the stand, or wonders why, reversible error has been committed.

Whatever reasons existed for such laws a century ago no longer exist.

They clothe a criminal in a steel armor and tend to make safe and exalt crime.

Although the witnesses against Brothers were men of character who went through the trial unimpeached and their testimony and identification were straightforward and direct, the failure of this man to himself take the stand and deny, if he could, committing such an abominable crime is in fact stronger evidence of guilt than any adduced at the trial.

Defendants do not take the stand when their lawyers realize that cross-examination will make their guilt even more apparent. There can hardly be any plainer evidence of guilt than a refusal to answer questions touching the subject.

And yet to even mention this really powerful evidence to the jury is contrary to law.

Under such circumstances a trial becomes a game of dice with the privilege in the defendant of using loaded ones.

Opinions Of Others

FITNESS FOR OFFICE
The problem of always getting fit men in office is one of considerable difficulty, especially in a society in which universal suffrage prevails. For men's prejudices, and their selfish motives are not laid aside when they approach the ballot box—perhaps that would be too much to expect. But it is not too much to hope for. We wonder whether there are many such partisans left as the man who many years ago said that he would vote for the fellow dog if he were nominated on the ticket of the party, in preference to an angel on the other ticket—and, such be it said, was his practice, sturdily adhered to. It is obvious that the man might have found himself living under a government administered by yellow dogs. Such a government would have been a government of his choice. For such a government he, and those similarly "motivated," would have been responsible. Such extreme and silly partisanship has often resulted in the rejection of fit, and the election of unfit men.

Broadly speaking, for whatever failures of this sort we have had, the voters are largely responsible. It has been said—we do not think quite truly—that the people get just about what a government as they deserve. Often they are deceived and fooled, often they make honest mistakes. Sometimes there is little to choose between two men offering themselves as candidates for the same office. Here the trouble goes back to the use of the nominating machinery. And there are likely to be complications growing out of the necessity of choosing between the relative importance of men and measures.

We believe that the people are now more awake than formerly to the great desirability of good government. Perhaps this is because their pocket nerve has been touched, because they realize that bad government is wasteful and costly. They are disposed to be more watchful, alert and critical, and it is well. We suppose it is idle to hope that we shall ever have as much efficiency in government as in private business. There seems to be one reason—that is at least plausible—why that can not be, and that is that government, while it is business, is a good deal more. Further it is created by the people, who are not present in the minds of the creators of great business enterprises. Nevertheless with more intelligence applied in politics, and more interest shown by the people, we ought to get better results. How such a government as that which causes New York could ever have come into power, one finds it difficult to understand. The Indianapolis News.

WE WERE kinda worried about the depression . . . even if Hoover, Raabok, Klein had told us that times were getting better . . . but Saturday everything was fixed up . . . yes, now we know things are gonna be better . . . we read where Mussolini told the big capitalists in Italy that things were better and are improving . . . well, we're glad that that's settled . . . now if Mr. Mussolini will tell us why the Easter rabbit didn't leave any eggs for us this year and what happened to Santa Claus, we'll appreciate it . . .

Which brings to mind the one about the little boy who was explaining some of the FACTS OF LIFE to his little sister.

"Now, there ain't any devil, it's just the same as Santa Claus and the Easter rabbit—it's your father and mother."

There's gonna be a ping pong meet in Chicago, this month, and the finals will be held in the ballroom of the Palmer House. Just think, title, of the possibilities for a thrilling nationwide radio broadcast!

We note this in a magazine—printed a week ago, delivered last week end—"Knutte Kenneth Rockne, football coach at Notre Dame, was made sales promotion manager of Studebaker Corporation."

Then there's the tough luck story about the unemployed lad who was all fixed up with a job digging ditches when it was discovered that he was too fat to get into a ditch. His weight: 414 pounds. He died to reach 361 pounds, but that was still too much.

Get him a job as a steamroller.

Easter is over now, and it's about time somebody said something about this business of selling baby chicks for Easter toys. The poor little fellows simply don't have a chance to grow up in most cases. Some of 'em don't even live long enough to get out of the store windows. Baby chicks have their value, but better let somebody play with them who knows how.

And up go loud yells of "Oh—but they're SO cute."

Yeah, particularly when they're dead.

In a biology class at Yale University, the students write their exams on typewriters and the question can be answered either "yes" or "no." The brightest boy in the class was blind, but he always had his lessons. When he clicked three keys on his typewriter, the others wrote "yes." When he clicked twice, the answer was "no." The teacher found out about it, talked the bright boy into answering his questions in reverse. The rest of the class fumbled.

THE JUDGE

They'd loved him once and voted him to sit
As Judge of all the sinners to be caught,
For such a post by nature he seemed fit,
And at the outset so I think he thought.

But he was quick to pardon and forgive
And soon the public questioned his decrees.
Then he resigned and went his way to live,
As he explained, where he could be at ease.

"So many came for punishment," said he,
"Whose sins were mine, if but the truth were known."
No erring culprit ever made a plea
Whose faults did not remind me of my own.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE EXPOSURE OF PASTEUR'S CHICKENS

Once in a while some writer or speaker purporting to be an authority does condescend to offer an explanation of that elusive state called "lowered resistance." The young lady who holds the position of health education director with a western state tuberculosis association recently got off some crisp stuff for the papers of the state. She was so emphatic about the way in which exposure to wet feet and drafts renders one more susceptible to infection that one newspaperman, an officer in his state editorial association, asked her to enlighten him further. She explained that she used the terms "immunity" and "resistance" interchangeably as they are often used in the field of bacteriology and biology. But she added that the word immunity refers to more resistance to a certain disease. So we are left to assume if we wish that the young lady conceives the term resistance to refer to a kind of general immunity against many, or all, diseases.

Then she finished off the newspaper man by citing the experiment of Pasteur and the hens. Pasteur inoculated hens with anthrax and found they did not develop the disease. But he soaked a hen in cold water long enough to bring the fowl's temperature down to that of mammals, and then Pasteur was able to produce anthrax in the hen. This famous experiment of the great scientist is often cited by those who would have us believe exposure to cold and wet lowers resistance or increases susceptibility to "colds."

Of course it proves nothing of the kind and Pasteur never remotely suggested any such thing. There is no analogy between the ordinary woman or child that lives and this unnatural experiment. No one seriously contends that ordinary exposure to cold and wet lowers the body temperature even to a fraction of a degree. The old timers who cite Pasteur's experiment in the attempt to fortify their own absurd position are simply presuming upon the childishness of their audience, for anybody who knows even the history of Pasteur's life and work can see through the little trick in an instant.

Having served Pasteur's frozen hen the young lady permits herself to become slightly facetious. She cites one Dr. Cumming (I fancy from the context it is none other than Old Dr. Cumming, surgeon-general of the U. S. C. P. H. S.) who said in the Journal of the National Education Association last November: "Probably this (that is, making ourselves less susceptible to colds) is best accomplished by permitting the body to become accustomed to conditions which seem to favor the development of a cold, such as sudden and marked changes in the weather, undue exposure to dampness, and similar condition." Page Mark Twain. Here's a bird who proposes to do something about the weather, or else to stop doing it.

Finally the young lady makes a strong text appeal to the newspaper man by admitting that there are no doubt people, as she knows very well from personal experience, who do not get colds after exposure. Yes, and likewise there are some who do not get murdered after crooning on the radio.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tickled With His Purchase

I think—of course I am not an expert—but it seems to me that when I use my electric vibrator gently over the abdominal cavity it relaxes the diaphragm so that I can get a much deeper breath. Is there any harm in this, as a regular daily practice? (D. C. L.)

Answer—It is harmless enough, though of course it does not relax your diaphragm. If your diaphragm were relaxed you would be scarcely able to get a deep breath. The most efficient breathing is natural breathing, belly breathing, not chest breathing. A simple belly breathing exercise each night and morning is beneficial in various respects. We are glad to send instructions for this to any reader who inclines with his request (not a clipping) a stamped envelope, bearing his address.

The Terrier Has Worms

You say one can get worms from the saliva of a dog that has worms. Our Boston terrier has them, for the veterinarian showed us the worms. The dog's greatest joy in life is to try to lick us on the mouth—he seems to delight to have his victim struggle to escape. Please tell me what symptoms we should look for. (Mrs. J. A. DuB.)

Answer—There are no characteristic symptoms. In most instances ordinary round worms produce no symptoms, in man or in animals. If anybody develops any symptoms, let the family physician interpret the symptoms. No harm in mentioning to the doctor that you have a dog and the dog has worms.

Baby Holds His Breath

Our baby aged 2 has a trick of holding his breath when in temper, sometimes when he is hurt as in falling, and we do not know what to do. Sometimes he seems very weak and pale after such a spell. The doctor thinks he will outgrow it. His teeth seem clenched and his hands and feet are contracted when he holds his breath. His eyes look peculiar and his lips become a little blue. (J. J.)

Answer—In some such cases, where the spells are so alarming, the child has enlarged thymus and this is usually evident in an X-ray examination and it may be corrected by X-ray treatments.

Child Eats Salt

My 4 year old nephew eats excessive quantities of salt, on food and by itself. (E. M.)

Answer—Better withhold salt, except a normal quantity as seasoning for food. Too much salt tends to make the body flabby, soft and sickly.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

WHEN Clowney found that he'd been tickled, he smiled and said, "All right, I'm licked, but now I want some real pop. I am thirty as can be—I think the joke, here I'm through, will be on all the rest of you. When you are finished with your pop, I'll still have mine, you see."

And he was right. The bunch were through and then, the next thing they knew, were Clowney held his bottle high and cried, "Who wants a taste?" Of course they all cried out, "We do." But Clowney snapped, "It's not for you. I'm going to drink it all and not one bit will go to waste."

In trying to drink it down too quick upon himself he played a trick. The pop clogged up within his throat and he began to choke. Kind Scouty cried, "You'll be all right. I'll slap your back with all my might." The others laughed and Clowney said, "This isn't any joke."

A little native lad came near and Coppy shouted, "Hey! Come here. I merely want to talk to you. You needn't be afraid. The youngster joined them, with a bound. Said he, "Some new friends I have found. It's been a long, long time since with some strangers I have played."

And then he turned and called some more small native lads who promptly tore up to the puzzled Tynmites. "We are nearly starved," said one. "If you would buy us food to eat, we'll sit right down here by the street and satisfy our appetites. Then we can have some fun."

"What do you want?" one Tyn said. A little youngster cocked his head and answered, "Just some apples. They will fill us up real quick." So Clowney bought some right nearby. The youngsters eyed them with a sigh. Then Clowney held them up and said, "All right, now take your pick."

FOR LAW AND ORDER

Editor Post-Crescent—Now that election is at hand, we soon will have a chance to vote and this privilege we should not neglect. But before we vote we should examine the record of the candidates.

We need men in office that stand for law and order to represent us at home and on the County board if we want to save Outagamie county from going in the dumps.

Several articles have been printed in the Post-Crescent about the county dance hall ordinance and all were in favor of that law. Some officials are opposed to it for reasons that are groundless such as that it will drive business into another county and that it discriminates against the small operators etc. I notice that Winnebago county is making a drive on road houses and resorts and intends to clean up the county. Now the question is are we going to let down the bars and think that there will be enough broad-minded members elected to the county board to block any attempt that may be made to favor operators of road houses or resorts. I wish to congratulate T. H. Ryan and all officials that work for this law. If the owners of these places can not make an honest living they better move and don't stop until they get out of the state. It appears to me that the few officials that opposed the ordinance must have kept some thing up their sleeves. At least one of them has stated that they don't need the county to tell them what to do, that they can run their own business. Well, if this official stands for law and orders he has plenty of things to clean up besides road houses.

Any one ought to know that the county does not attempt to interfere with any one's legal business but it stands for law and order and every respectable citizen will support that more.

FOR HIGHWAY EFFICIENCY
Editor Post-Crescent—Several phases of wasteful expenditure of county money have been discussed in the People's Forum, yet one, which is of interest to everyone has not been mentioned—that is the highway department.

The fact that the present members of the county board were elected by a majority of their constituents proves that they had faith in these men; to carry on the county's business. Now if these men would attend to the county's business, as they would to their own, all would be

DECLARATION OF WAR

On April 6, 1917, the house of representatives passed a resolution, which the senate had passed two days before, declaring war against Germany.

The vote in the senate had been 82 to 6. The vote in the house was 273 to 160. The joint resolution was signed by Thomas R. Marshall, vice president; Champ Clark, speaker of the house, and approved by President Wilson, on this date.

Our entrance into the war followed the breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany Feb. 3, after that country had begun its campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare and 200 Americans had lost their lives on the high seas.

Two days after the resolution declaring war was adopted, the Austrian charge d'affaires in Washington asked for his passports because his country was an ally of Germany. It was not, however, until Dec. 7, 1917, that war was declared against Austria-Hungary.

well. The patrolmen of the different sections of the highway system receive their instructions from headquarters, every morning. I am told, Headquarters understands no more about what is required on a road, than any other person, who has not seen it.

Take the road between Hortonville and Medina, for an example. Very little real constructive has been done there for many years. The usual program is to have the patrolman scrape the loose dirt and rocks from one side of the road to the other side, and the next day or the day after, it is returned to the first place. The only change made is that more dirt is loosened for wind and cars to blow away.

If the men whose farms adjoin these highways cannot do the road work themselves, put man, on the job who knows something about repair and upkeep of the road and hold him responsible for the condition of his part of the road.

The work on this section of the road has been absolute waste, since Mr. McNulty resigned.

County board, attend to the work delegated to you by your constituents.

FACT ABOUT SUPERVISING TEACHERS

Editor Appleton Post-Crescent: Some of the letters that have appeared recently the "People's Forum" show so much misinformation, guessing, and prejudice that it seems proper for me to offer your readers a simple statement of fact.

Supervising Teachers are state officials working within the limits of a county. Their qualifications are approved by the State Department of Education. Their salaries and expenses are paid by the county in which they work, but the entire amount of such salary and expense is refunded to the county at the end of the school year. They own and operate their own cars on a mileage basis approved by the State, and they travel an average of 1500 miles a month on their official duties. As a matter of fact only a small portion of actual mileage is charged at the permitted rate, the rest going in as mileage.

On this payment basis, Outagamie County is taxed a little less than $60.00 a year for each supervising teacher. This is true because they are paid from the mill tax that provides the state school money. Milwaukee, Racine, and Kenosha provide more than 75 per cent of this sum. The rest of the cities of the state contribute, and Outagamie County rural communities are the beneficiaries of the service that has cost them practically nothing.

WUPPER BACK IN NEBRASKA FOR HEARING

Accused Embezzler and Bigamist Appears Unconcerned About Fate

Lincoln, Neb., (AP)—Surrounded by a cordon of officers and official attaches, Paul Wupper, former Beemer, Neb., bank president and mayor, was whisked away to his old home territory soon after his arrival here early today. The man who faces charges of absconding a million dollars from the Beemer State bank and wrecking the institution in September, 1928, was jovial as he chatted with officers while waiting for photographers to get flash-light shots.

State Sheriff Endres told the Associated Press it was his plan to hurry on to West Point and put Wupper through a preliminary hearing later today. Sheriff Endres added that as soon as Wupper answered the embezzlement charge the prisoner would be brought back to Lincoln for safe keeping.

Sheriff Endres declined to reveal why he had brought Wupper here from Omaha. Insinuated as West Point is nearer Omaha than Lincoln, Endres did say, however, that he wanted to get Wupper to West Point and back to Lincoln before citizens to Beemer realized their former townsmen was back in the state. West Point is the seat of Cumming-co, in which Beemer is located.

Martial troubles led to Wupper's arrest at Philadelphia on charges of non-support. When Wupper's wife Number 2 found out about wife Number 1 the complaint was changed to bigamy. It was then the former banker told authorities he was wanted in Nebraska on charges of wrecking the Beemer bank.

Wupper assumed Name

Wupper went under the name of Frederick Brinkman in Philadelphia where he had worked for a time. His Philadelphia wife is known there as Mrs. Hedwig Brinkman.

Meanwhile, in Fremont, Wupper's first wife is glad to know what has become of her 54-year-old mate, but tells all questioners she does not want to see him, has no grudge against her husband and will not bring any charges or complaints against him. A daughter, Margaret, 22, is at home with her mother in Fremont, and another daughter, Caroline, 20, is a student at the University of Nebraska.

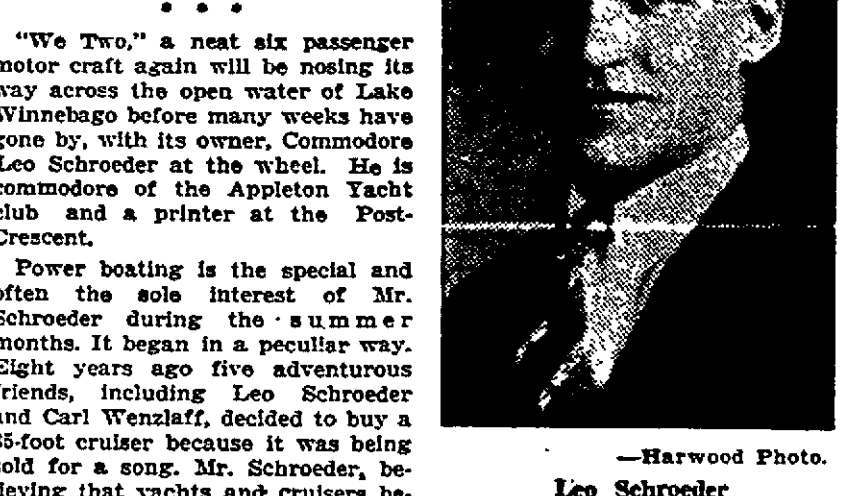

In a signed statement to newspapers on his arrival here, Wupper said in part:

"I have no statement to make, other than I returned to my home state to face the charges against me, thereby relieving my conscience. I disclosed by identity at Philadelphia without having been questioned in regard thereto by any of the officers of the law. I did so of my own free will. Any statement on the contrary is untrue."

"I desire to add that I have been treated very courteously at the hands of Deputy State Sheriff Fred Benton and Sheriff Charles Saxe of Cumming-co."

"We Two," a neat six passenger motor craft again will be nosing its way across the open water of Lake Winnebago before many weeks have gone by, with its owner, Commodore Leo Schroeder at the wheel. He is commodore of the Appleton Yacht club and a printer at the Post-Crescent.

Power boating is the special and often the sole interest of Mr. Schroeder during the summer months. It began in a peculiar way. Eight years ago five adventurous friends, including Leo Schroeder and Carl Wenzlaff, decided to buy a 25-foot cruiser because it was being sold for a song. Mr. Schroeder, believing that yachts and cruisers belonged only to the realm of movies and the idle rich, had never owned a boat before, but after even the sad experiences with the cruiser, he has never been without one since. "We Two" is a 22 foot beauty, two years old, that travels as a streak of red across the water. Mr. Schroeder will spend most of his leisure at the club on swimming and fishing jaunts in the boat. He is interested in promoting power boating in Appleton.

Mr. Schroeder came to Appleton in 1915 with his family. He was born in the town of Grand Chute, but received all of his education here. He attended Columbus school and Zion Lutheran school. Mr. Schroeder completed 400 hours in the study of printing and mathematics at the Appleton Vocational school. He is now studying journalism and foremanship with the American Institute of Chicago. EVANGELIST IS SHOT DEAD BY FORMER PASTOR

Mortally Wounded After Trying to Induce Slay-er to Take Pulpit

Nevada, Mo., (AP)—The reunited congregation of a little log church at Halley's Bluffs mourned today as a coroner's jury took up the shooting of the Rev. George Rider, Kansas City evangelist, at the home of his former pastor, the Rev. J. A. Brown. The evangelist, 42, mortally wounded on a mission of peace, died here Easter day, praying for forgiveness for Mr. Brown, a 67-year-old veteran of the ministry who was held in the Vernon-co jail.

"I wish I was dead, too," the prisoner said.

A pall was cast over their little church in the white oak clearing. The men and women in its homesteaded news worshipped in sorrow under a crudely painted motto:

"Christian Union without Controversy."

Webster Hallett, prosecuting attorney, said the motive of the shooting hinged on the success of services Mr. Rider had conducted the last three weeks in the non-denominational pulpit. Mr. Brown resigned last December. Sixteen persons were converted in a revival that restored harmony to the church.

Asked Brown to preach

Mr. Rider, called to attend a funeral in Kansas City, said he sought to pay Mr. Brown a compliment in asking him to conduct Easter services. The former pastor refused.

The evangelist was shot in the back and left side as he returned from Mrs. Rider to his motor car. Dropping to his knees, he prayed for his assailant.

"I would rather go back to Kansas City in a box," he said, "than to leave this community while there is so much bad feeling in it."

C. P. McCumber, deputy sheriff and a member of the church arrested the former pastor. Authorities said he had told several versions of events leading up to the shooting.

He was quoted as saying insistence of the evangelist on a reconciliation had angered him and led to blows. Again he said the evangelist had attempted to force entrance to his house. He said disension had caused him to resign.

"There was a lot of gossip, he said, 'a lot of untrue gossip. I got out of the church to stop it.'"

Officers said the original disagreement in the church resulted in the preaching of Brown at other churches Sunday afternoon. He went to the Halley's Bluffs church a year ago from Miller, Mo., under a contract to conduct services for 75 per cent of the collections.

Differences between the two men were epitomized in Mr. Brown's alleged resentment against innovations in the service, such as a children's choir and an orchestra, which were advocated by Mr. Rider.

PESTILENCE THREAT SEEN IN AUSTRALIA

Sydney, Australia, (AP)—With about 200,000,000 bushels of unsold wheat in storage fears for a plague of vermin, followed by a national pestilence, are growing in Australia.

In 1915-16, when great quantities of grain were held over, there was a plague of mice and rats. Caught in huge traps, the vermin were carted away in trucks by the ton.

If something cannot be done to shift the present harvest it is feared that a greater plague, of which signs are not wanting, will be created.

Silos and grain sheds are full to overflowing with wheat, the terminal ports and railways are congested, and in the country wheat is stacked and stored everywhere.

The largest death toll in the Shetland Islands for any month known has just been reported for February. The severe weather conditions caused the death of many old people. The average age of the 40 who died was 74 years. Seventeen were aged between 50 and 61 and only 13 of the total were found under 70.

FUND OF MILLION TO PROMOTE AMITY

Oberlander Tries to Foster Good Will Between U. S. and Germany

New York, (AP)—Gustave Oberlander of Reading, Pa., an immigrant who earned only $7 a week when he was a clerk in a New York bookstore 42 years ago, has established a fund of $1,000,000 to promote good will between the United States and Germany, his homeland.

The gift is announced by the Carl Schurz Memorial foundation which, with a board of directors including Mr. Oberlander, will administer the fund. The money will be distributed over a period of 25 years among adults who wish to study in Germany who have an interest in international affairs and are qualified to interpret the findings to the American people.

Mr. Oberlander, at one time a manufacturer of knitted wear, retired from business several years ago. Yesterday at his home in Reading he explained the reasons for the fund.

"I've come to the conclusion," he said, "that I want to dispose of my money while I am living. This endowment will be followed by others the nature of which I am unable to tell because I haven't definitely made up my mind what they will be."

Only students in the fields of public health and welfare, old age insurance, race relations, music, art, or kindred subjects will be eligible to share in the fund.

"I don't know what the endowment will actually do," he said, "but I have hopes that it will do much."

Give Child Time Enough For Playing

A child counts as lost that day upon which he had no fun. Forever after he marks with a red letter the day when he had the most fun. Fun is the tonic of childhood. With it in good measure they flourish. Without it they wilt and perish. Actually perish.

Now what is fun for one is mad medicine for another and we have to be certain that what we offer the children as fun is really fun for them. Sometimes we give them our own fun and cannot understand what ails them when they refuse it. "Why don't you go and play?" "I don't know what to play." "What? With all those nice playthings you got for your birthday? You don't know what to play?" "They're not much fun. I know something I'd like to do. It would be fun. But you'd never let me."

"What is that?" "I'd like to climb the old maple tree."

"And ruin your clothes and maybe break your neck?" "Oh, I said you'd never let me."

There was actual scorn in the voice just nine months of age. Actual scorn. And his mother heard it. For a moment anger filled her soul and she had all she could do to hold her tongue. Then, recovering, she managed to say, "Change your clothes and climb ahead. I imagine you can do it if you really want to."

"Mother, do you mean that? Can I really? I'll be so careful, I'll, Mother, do everything you ask me after this. See if I don't. O gee, watch me climb that tree."

Watch the children and see what their tastes are and follow them in order that they may lead them. Go with them a little way that they may go with you the longer way.

Confidence breeds confidence. Grant that the children can do what they want to do and they will get further on their way. We cannot insure their safety always but keeping them in the house, tying them to the chair, will not make their lives any the safer. Experience brings wisdom and strength.

Many a boy insists upon doing something he cannot do. Instead of saying "You can't do it," try saying "You think this will be fun? Well, get ready and go ahead. Try it anyway." Often the getting ready serves the purpose of the whole expedition, the child's mind is at rest, he has learned something, he has more confidence in his parents' judgment, more faith in their affection for him.

Now and then, as a surprise reward for good deeds, make the child is the none-too-agreeable task of housecleaning. So hearken, you well-meaning housewives... why not have silk and span new curtains to put up when you take the old ones down? Some terribly appealing sets at GLOUDEMAN'S-CAGE, second floor, that are hard to resist. The new rainbow combination of pastels in a yarn dyed marquisette would lend charm to your bedroom. There are several combined shades such as the blended tones of orchid, peach and green with all the freshness of an April springtime in their coloring. And consider the kitchen in gold, blue, or green window furbelows to greet you every morning. These curtains come in six pieces of one color ruffled in white with a dash of brightness in the small bottom ruffle border. Noticed that the new acacia panels, with a flower basket decoration for a wide bottom border, has its fringe set up on the hem instead of dangling from the lower edge in a stringy fashion. Good idea... you don't know how much better it makes the curtain look.

AS usual GENESSES have one of the best looking coats in town... this particular one is deep blue with all the fineness of a Parisian designer in the stitched taffeta lapel cut on an exaggeration of mannish lines. Four buttons hint at masculinity, but the straight moulded lines betray all its femininity. A glance through the coats shows that the new gray is popular, and that there are furless look well draped for afternoon... collars and cuffs tend to be large and stitched... some of the softer crepes even look like street dresses in their simplicity.

IF YOU want to see "Good News" in naturally bright color vend your way to GREENE'S second floor and have a look at the Happening pajamas that have trousers over a yard wide (that is absolute fact because the saleslady and I measured them). Originated in Hollywood, these rayon pajamas have all the color of flaming California, sunset and the personality of Clara Bow. The trousers hang in full folds that make them look just like the skirt of a flared gown. The pajamas are set on a wide, fitted yoke to assure a smooth fit over the hips. Blouses are sleeveless and tucked-in. My heart capitulated over a black and white effect... black trousers with a gorgeous three tone yoke trim of red and gold that is repeated in the white blouse. The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

CORRINE turned off her engine and slipped out of the car. She was aware that a man had climbed from the taxicab. A man who looked more or less familiar. She didn't stop to wonder why she was so familiar, so cool and daring. Something seemed to tell her that the firing was over.

Then she gasped. The man was Jim Redding!

"Oh my God...." he said, as he saw Corrine. "Now I'll go up sure. I...."

"What did you do? What happened?" She thought of Jack, and then remembered that she had seen his car going after Sue. Perhaps he hadn't gone after all.

"Shut your darned mouth or I'll give you the same kind of treatment! Oh my God!"

Corrine saw, then, that he recognized her. The man made a dart back into the car. But as he turned, Corrine tripped him. Instinctively she knew he had reached for a gun. A gun that must have been left inside. The instant the man was on the ground, she was on top of him. And dimly she realized as she struggled, she did not know who had been shot.... If the person had been killed or injured.... She only knew that a man with bloodthirsty eyes, and wet, perspiring hands that slipped when they tried to clutch, but she tried again before she could get away, was battling with her. The gun was pointed down.

But what if he should change it, and it would go off and kill him, and she would be blamed?

Or what if it should kill her? She had to make this man leave her alone. If a car would come. But she knew that it wasn't likely that anyone would come along the muddy, neglected trail. When the wind stirred the branches of the trees that grew everywhere, and the rain fell with such deadly monotony.

Then just as suddenly she saw a crimson spot on the man's mouth. A crimson circle that grew larger and brighter. He relaxed his hold, and sank back. The gun slipped from his nerveless hand. Corrine remembered that she had read of noiseless guns.

"But I didn't shoot! I didn't shoot! I didn't even touch the gun!" Some instinct warned her not to do so now. "I.... didn't.... shoot!" She shouted the words and they carried shrilly from tree to tree, down the rainsoaked forest, and came echoing back.

"I can get away," she murmured hysterically. "Nobody will know I've been here! But they'll find me and think I ran off!" The man was still breathing. She could see that. He was groping for something. A handkerchief to stop the blood, perhaps, Corrine sensed. She placed her own square of fragile linen against the crimson spot.

"Jack needs him for a witness. He can't die!" Now another thought had forced its way into her mind. "I'll have to save him in order to save my father! Maybe I can get him in my car!"

But first she had to see who was in the taxicab. She wondered where the driver had gone. She noticed the license. It was queer looking. She examined it closely. No wonder. A "1" had been changed to home-made "4" and the original number was the one carried by the taxicab which she had driven!

TINY VILLAGE TAKES PLACE OF TABLE FLOWERS

Paris (AP)—Miniature East Indian villages made of glass are taking the place of flowers for centerpieces on many smart dinner tables this season.

The tiny villages, the design of which was inspired by the coming colonial exposition, are placed on an unbordered mirror in the center of the table. They include green and white glass hills, trees and infinitesimal negroes.

A bath of problems today about the eternal mother-in-law. Really that poor woman seems to be to blame for a great deal of young married unhappiness.

Helen, G. isn't married yet but she sees trouble ahead. Already there is war to the death between Helen and the man's mother. And the pity of it is that the man is apt to give in to mother every time.

Acting on his mother's advice, he has broken dates with Helen, tried to shake off his feeling for her, been rude and inconsiderate. In any major battle of importance he is on mother's side although he somewhat sheepishly begs Helen to forgive him for being so weak.

Helen wants to know what to do, and there seems to be only one answer. If this mother problem is so acute before marriage, it will be ten times worse after. The mother who has such a strong hold on her son that she can compel him to be rude to the girl he loves will have an even stronger hold, once he is married and has begun to find out that his wife is just a mortal creature after all.

Unless, Helen you're prepared to battle for your rights, all down the years, I shouldn't advise you to undertake matrimony with a man who is so devoted to his mother that you are always occupying second place in his thoughts.

Troubled wife is one of the women who have married men whose mothers were all-important. Now T. W. is faced with the difficult necessity of having her mother-in-law come to live with her in her own home. And although she does not wish trouble, yet she is sensible enough to know that there will be jealousy between two women so devoted to the same man. Also T. W.'s husband that compared to her quite frankly that compared to his love for his mother and father, his love for her means practically nothing.

Therefore T. W. is fairly certain that she will not get an even break in any disputes which arise in the household.

Because she is married, because she has a child, and because her life has been fairly shaped for her by now, T. W. has got to sit down and take her medicine. She cannot now combat her husband's devotion to his own mother. She can't now make endless warfare to establish herself as the most important person in her husband's life. She must put up with this state of affairs as cheerfully and bravely as possible.

And perhaps with patience and tolerance, sweetness and understanding, T. W. can prove to her husband that she is the greatest love of his life. Let her keep remembering always to be his truest and best companion and his excess of devotion to his mother will probably cease. T. W. has a hard knot to unite but with real patience she may do a good job of it.

Elizabeth, K. is in the same position as T. W. except that she is not compelled to live under the same roof with her dominating mother-in-law. But the good lady manages to make trouble in every conceivable way. And E. K.'s husband allows his mother's interference to ruin his domestic peace. Instead of uniting with his wife to keep harmony in the home, he wavers between mother and spouse, and succeeds in making everyone unhappy.

Here again there is nothing for E. K. to do but make the best of things. She can't change her husband's attitude toward his mother. She can't change that estimable of two pieces. The dress was of gold brocade and with it she wore a shimmering bolero jacket of black sequins.

COLORED NAILS ARE IN VOGUE THIS SEASON

BY ALICIA HART
You may have been hearing about the Paris mannequins who let spectators gasp because they wore no stockings with their beautiful evening clothes and let their little toes stick right out through their too-less evening sandals.

Well, they enameled their nails black, silver, gold, or bright blue or green, according to whatever they were wearing. And in the smart shops now you can find these same too-less evening sandals. But have a sneaking idea few American women will be exposing black or gold toenails when they dance!

But, certainly the vogue is growing to color fingernails. Gay reds, if not exotic black and gold or silver.

This is, or should be, a distinctly leisure hour habit orfad. Certainly there is something commendable about the beautifully kept but delicately tinted nail for business!

But when evening comes, and parties, there seems to be something quickening in the sight of a beautifully gownned and meticulously groomed woman with her lovely nails scarlet. You may or may not like them that way. But you may as well recognize the fact and it might give you a lift to try it out.

You now can get nail enamel to match your particular lipstick and rouge coloring. It comes in many kinds of red. There is a medium bright, geranium kind of red which is very smart and of all the gay reds, probably the most popular. It is a color for the sophisticated, for the woman who uses this tone lipstick and rouge.

Then there is a deep, rich carmine type of fingernail enamel, for the vivid, arresting brunette. It is very, very exotic and you should think twice before using it and especially make sure it is the type that goes well with your lipstick and rouge.

There are many new colored enamels which I have neglected to

Evening Gowns Drop To Instep; Wide Range Revealed In Colors

BY DIANA MERWIN

Paris (AP)—Sparkle, shimmer and colorful tints mark the new gowns for evening hours.

The frocks that midday will wear dancing this spring display a color range from crimson and blue violet to shell pink and leaf green, decked in the glitter of sequins, silver and gold.

A gown of shell pink chiffon is embroidered in silver thread and banded with uncurled pink ostrich at the bottom, a beige net is trimmed with circles of iridescent sequins, a scarlet tulle displays patterns worked in gold thread.

Even many lace frocks are embroidered. There are black lace gowns embroidered with pink cosmos and pale green leaves. Ivory lace dresses worked with coral beads or pale green straw, and pastel blue laces trimmed with knots of silver thread.

The embroidery is generally sparingly done, designed to give a touch of radiance here and there.

Most of the evening gowns are designed with fitted bodices, having a low décolletage in back. Hiplines are snug, often extending half-way to the knee, while skirts allow into full lines below. A length just brushing the instep promises to be the most popular, although ankle length gowns will also be worn.

For the woman who wants a frock without sparkle there are chiffons and satins in plain tints and flowered crepes of gay hues, designed with drapes or godets which fall softly to the hem.

These may be in pastel tints, black or white, all of which promise popularity in the midst of the season's color.

Cotton Replace Silks
Paris (AP)—Cotton blouses instead of lustrous silk are the "last word" in smartness this spring.

Scores of blouses in plain tints and the new tailors are made of sheer organdy, dotted swiss or trim plaques. Pastel shades, stripes and polka dots, as well as white, are used for the washable blouses.

Two-Piece Train
Washington (AP)—Mrs. Patrick Hurley, blond wife of the secretary of war, introduced a new note in afternoon gowns at a recent reception in the form of a fish-tail train lady's desire to have her finger in every pie. Yet she can go on making the best of a bad job, keeping her temper, and showing her husband that she is worthy of his protection and deepest love.

COMMISSION ON UTILITY UP TO VOTERS OF CITY

Creation of Water and Light Body Depends Upon Citizens

Menasha—Creation of a water and light commission, a live issue in Menasha politics for over a year, will be either sanctioned or denied by city voters at the polls Tuesday.

An opinion taken at the polls last year favored formation of a commission, and a petition asking its creation was submitted by electors to the common council Oct. 16, 1930, but the question was returned to the people in Tuesday's referendum, by virtue of a council deadlock on an aldermanic motion to form the governing body for city utilities.

If the plan is approved in the referendum election, a five man commission, to serve without pay, will be selected to govern the city water and light plant, valued at $1,000,000. The commission would replace the aldermanic water and light committee in direction of city utilities.

Hot Treasures Race

A three cornered race for the office of city treasurer is expected to attract many voters to the polls Tuesday. Carl A. Heckrodt, incumbent, is opposed for reelection by John Schreiber and Michael J. Zielinski.

A closely contested count is expected with four candidates in the battle for aldermanic choice in both the Fourth and Fifth wards. In the fourth city division, John Lingnott, incumbent, is opposed by Alexander Gajewski, Philip Michalikiewicz and Joseph Scovronski; while James Baldwin, Fifth ward incumbent, is opposed for reelection by Theodore Beach, Sr., Charles Grade, and Mrs. Emma Payer.

Two candidates seek council offices in each of the three remaining wards. In the Second ward, Michael J. Small, president of the council, and Henry Duerrwacher are in the field; T. E. McGillan, incumbent, is where its properties are situated. Budney, while either Michael Grode or William Meyer will be named as Third ward alderman.

Some Are Unopposed

Robert M. Heckner, Fourth ward supervisor and Edward Sonnenberg, Third ward incumbent, are unopposed for reelection Tuesday. Robert M. Heckner is in the race for First ward supervisor; while Louis M. Kolashinski and Bernard F. Hart are Second ward candidates. In the Fifth ward, Edward J. Fahrbach, incumbent, is opposed by Jacob J. Mohr.

John Marsh, a candidate for the office of justice of the peace, is also in the field.

City voters will vote on state and county judicial offices, and on the state referendum relative to the issuance of motor vehicle licenses by the counties.

Ballots will be cast in the usual places. First ward residents will vote at the city hall, Second ward voters at the Butte des Morts school, Third ward electors at the Nicolet school; Fourth ward voters at the ward hall and Fifth ward residents at the filtration plant.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ANSWERS 4 ALARMS

Responds to Alarm from Andrew Wilz Residence, Town of Menasha

Menasha—The Menasha fire department responded to an alarm from the Andrew Wilz residence, town of Menasha, about a quarter mile beyond the city limits, at 8 o'clock Monday morning. Wilz was heating water in his basement when a kerosene stove exploded, burning basement wiring and charring the ceiling, according to department reports.

Permission to respond to the out of town alarm was received from Mayor N. G. Remmel. The blaze was under control when the department arrived.

The Menasha department responded to three other alarms over the weekend. Shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon it was called to the home of Jacob Leible, 600 Third-st., where a chimney fire ignited shingles on the roof. Little damage resulted.

A hollow electric light pole, ignited by a small grass fire, brought the department to the west end of Main-st at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and a chimney and roof fire, similar to the blaze at the Leible residence, brought firemen to the W. KNIGHTS TEMPLAR AT EASTER SERVICES

Menasha—Knights Templar from Neenah, Menasha, and Appleton attended the Easter services at the First Congregational church, Menasha, Sunday morning. "The Resurrection Life" was the title of the sermon given by the Rev. John Best, pastor.

The Sunday School Easter program was presented in the church at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Exercises were presented by each department and the program concluded with presentation of "Hope" a one-act play under the direction of Mrs. T. Elliott.

May Stage Political Comeback

A shift in governmental affairs may bring David Lloyd-George, at the age of 68, back into a leading role in British political life. The wartime premier, shown here in a striking new picture taken at his home in Chertsey, England, may be given the task of solving England's acute unemployment problem as Lord Privy Seal in a new coalition cabinet. It also has been rumored that he will desert the Liberal party, which he long has led, to join the Laborite government.

DRUNKEN DRIVER FINED $50, COSTS

Charles Linsing Pleads Guilty When Arraigned in Justice Court

Neenah—Charles Linsing was fined $50 and costs by Justice George Harness Monday morning when he pleaded guilty of operating his car while intoxicated. In passing sentence the judge fixed the fine at $100 and costs with an additional 30 days at Winnebago jail and an order to not drive his car for six months. On recommendation of authorities, the fine was lowered and the jail sentence suspended and he was placed on probation for one year, six months of which he will not be able to drive his car.

The case of Conrad Delmer of Appleton, scheduled for Monday afternoon in Justice George Harness' court, was postponed one week as witnesses for both the state and defendant were unable to be present. Delmer was arrested three weeks ago on a charge of driving while intoxicated following a collision with a car owned by M. Marsh.

White House Easter Egg Roll Held Despite Rain

Washington—(AP)—Despite a thin cold drizzle, hundreds of children came to the White House today to frolic in the traditional Easter Monday egg roll.

It began with normal attendance, the only result of the rain being to add var-colored umbrellas to the scene. Several hundred children from babies in go-carts to ten-year-olds, were waiting when the iron gates swung open at 9 o'clock.

Massed in the east room, about 200 children of government officials crowded to the windows overlooking the broad south grounds. They had been invited by Mrs. Hoover to join her three grandchildren, Peggy Ann, Herbert Hoover III, and Joan.

At 10 o'clock the program which Mrs. Hoover planned began. The blue and red uniformed Marine band swung into the south grounds, marched up to a raised platform in the center, removed rain protectors from their instruments, and struck up a folk song. A group of about 25 girls moved into a rope off rectangle and began a folk dance.

Knolls along the edges of the grounds were the most popular points. There scores tossed their eggs into mid-air, and rolled them down to shrieking playmates.

Daily colored baskets swung from the children's arms. Grown ups, admitted only if accompanied by a child, spread blankets on the grass and assisted in games.

To meet any emergency, an ambulance drew up within the grounds and hovered nearby. A "Lost and found" white tent stood at the extreme south edge, with boy scouts ready to return lost articles or, if necessary, lost children.

It was expected that the president's grandchild and their guests would join the frolic later. Reported, when a figure appeared on the portico overlooking the scene, crowds surged forward, only to disperse when the spectator proved another visitor.

The first casualty was Sam Jackson, 10, Muskegon, Mich. He broke his arm when he fell from the portico overlooking the grounds. He was carried to the waiting ambulance, and sent to the Emergency hospital.

ALL EVENTS

---------------------------	------

MENASHA teams rolled in the Elks state tournament Saturday and made one change in the team events. When the Fall City doubles and singles teams along with Appleton legions started after the maple Sunday, there were numerous and radical changes among the first ten leaders.

Seven new leaders were reported in doubles events, the Appleton duo of Oscar Kunitz and Les Hill getting into second place with an 1182 score. The singles scores were not so hard hit, only five changes were recorded there.

The lone change in the team events occurred when the Hendy Recreation of Menasha rolled a 2721 with games of 855, 965 and 901. W. Tuschacher led the assault with scores of 185, 220, 133.

In the doubles events, Oscar Kunitz rolled 219, 190, 179—582 as his contribution to the count. Hill rolled a 192, 211, 195—598 for his share. Carl Van Able and Kurt Koletzke had 1173 and F. Johnston and Clarence Currie 1170. W. Pierce and D. Mayor took doubles honors for Menasha bowlers with 1172 while W. Tuschacher and R. Kellhauser came along with a 1142 count. A. A. Gitzmacher and N. Weber of Appleton were reported with 1145.

W. Fries of Appleton topped all the legions in singles with a score of 639 and took first honors. He rolled a big 239 to start on his way to a new mark, then dropped to 198 and followed with 202. Pete Borenz of Menasha went into third place with 633 the result of games of 245, 180, 208. A. A. Gitzmacher was next high among the single scores over the weekend with 627 the result of scores of 190, 193, 235. He ran his best string in the final game and yet missed a strike in the last frame that would have given him a first place. C. Van Able, Appleton rolled a 617 and H. Duerwachter, Menasha, a 612.

OLDER BOY LEAGUERS LOSE TO BAY TEAMS

Two Appleton Older Boy League teams went to Green Bay Saturday afternoon to meet with older boy teams from the Bay City and took trimmings for their troubles. The Deltas lost to the Fort Howard quintet by a score of 19 and 16. The Deltas were ahead until late in the game when the Fort Howard five started banging away with long shots and copped.

The other game saw Sam Ornstein's Specials lose to the Panthers with a score of 13 and 12. The count was the same as in a game here a week ago. However, in that fracas the Specials were victors.

Tuesday evening the two Appleton teams will clash at the Y. M. C. A. for the championship of the Older Boy League. The Deltas won the elimination title round and the Specials copped the league championship. The game will begin at 7:30.

NEOPIT AND WAUPACA JOIN WOLF RIVER LOOP

The Neopit Indians and Waupaca have joined the Wolf River valley league to make up for teams which have withdrawn this spring. The Indians take the place of Angelo and the Potato Diggers will supplant Shawano. The latter club has joined the Fox River Valley league. Other members of the Wolf River league are Clintonville, Marion, Tigerton, and Wittenberg.

A mutiny of Clintonville players and fans is scheduled for the city and town tonight.

Derogatory Notes of a Baseball Traveler

PRO FIGHTERS AT OSHKOSH THURSDAY

Double Windup Card Will Show 32 Rounds of High Class Fighting

DOUBLE WINDUP

Johnny Lombardo, Milwaukee, vs Bobby Calmes, Kansas City. 126 pounds, 8 rounds.

Eddie Black, Milwaukee, vs Jackie Davies, Chicago. 136 pounds, 8 rounds.

Young Shaw, Oshkosh, vs Jack Beal, Oshkosh. 140 pounds, 6 rounds.

Ernie Kath, Sheboygan, vs Eddie Oster, Milwaukee. 161 pounds, 6 rounds.

Frankie Burns, Milwaukee, vs Billy Delaney, Sheboygan. 147 pounds, 4 rounds.

Thirty-two rounds of boxing are being offered professional fight fans at Oshkosh Thursday evening, according to the card announced recently by Matchmaker Friedrich. The show is expected to be one of the best ever staged in the Sawdust city.

The feature attraction of the evening is between Johnny Lombardo of Milwaukee and Bobby Calmes of Kansas City, the boys to go eight rounds at 126 pounds. Calmes has trimmed the only man ever to get a decision over the Milwaukeean who has never been beaten in an Oshkosh ring.

Eddie Black and Jackie Davies are the other two fighters in the double windup. They have met before and according to reports staged a real battle.

An all-Oshkosh bout is on the card, Jack Beal and Young Shaw. The two boys are fighting for home town honors and are expected to stage a fracas that will have the fans talking a long time.

Ernie Kath, a rugged blonde from Sheboygan, also shows on the program. He is well known to Appleton fans having performed here as an amateur. His opponent is Eddie Oster, Milwaukee.

ROCKNE ROUGH AND READY STUDENT OF KEEN PSYCHOLOGY

Famous Grid Coach Had Joke and Jibe for Almost Every Occasion

BY LOREN DISNEY

(Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles depicting the human side of Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's great coach.)

KNUTE ROCKNE has coached his last football team. The last of his trenchant tongue will be missing when future eleven carry the colors of Notre Dame onto the gridiron; but the legend of the greatest rough and ready psychologist the game ever knew will continue to grow.

So many are the tales of the stocky Norwegian's rich speech and shrewd manner of exacting the utmost from his famous Ramblers that the "Rock's" exploits are told and retold wherever football is known.

Those Rockne Yarns

A Rockne story carries an implication of quality that only the most publicized trade-marks attain. Everyone who has felt the thrill of watching a kick off to the tune of "Cheer, Cheer for Old Notre Dame" has his particular favorite.

The yarns range from Rockne's habit of changing in a jovial, scornful manner, a blundering lineman with "having a charley-horse between the ears" to his appeal to the team to "win one for George Gipp."

One of the latest uses of his handy wit was in answer to the numerous charges that football is being over-emphasized.

At the start of spring practice at South Bend this year Rockne assembled the usual hundred boys who had turned out.

"I don't know whether we ought to have spring practice this year," he said. "It might take too much time from your drinking and necking."

The Giants borrowed a kid's bag of marbles on a rainy day at San Antonio and played while waiting for the field to dry out. They ought to bring some of the marbles back with them, and use them instead of baseballs when playing the Cincinnati Reds.

ORANGE TRACKSTERS TO BEGIN OUTDOOR DRILLS

Reopening of Appleton high school today marks the beginning of the outdoor track season for Orange tracksters, according to Coach Joseph Shields and he plans to start the thin blades on their way immediately. The first workouts probably will be little more than limbering up exercises. The outdoor drills will continue as long as weather permits.

Coach Shields plans to hold his first meet, the inter class meet, late this month. The first inter school meet is the Manitowish relays scheduled the first week in May.

KNUTE ROCKNE has coached his last football team. The last of his trenchant tongue will be missing when future eleven carry the colors of Notre Dame onto the gridiron; but the legend of the greatest rough and ready psychologist the game ever knew will continue to grow.

So many are the tales of the stocky Norwegian's rich speech and shrewd manner of exacting the utmost from his famous Ramblers that the "Rock's" exploits are told and retold wherever football is known.

Those Rockne Yarns

A Rockne story carries an implication of quality that only the most publicized trade-marks attain. Everyone who has felt the thrill of watching a kick off to the tune of "Cheer, Cheer for Old Notre Dame" has his particular favorite.

The yarns range from Rockne's habit of changing in a jovial, scornful manner, a blundering lineman with "having a charley-horse between the ears" to his appeal to the team to "win one for George Gipp."

One of the latest uses of his handy wit was in answer to the numerous charges that football is being over-emphasized.

At the start of spring practice at South Bend this year Rockne assembled the usual hundred boys who had turned out.

"I don't know whether we ought to have spring practice this year," he said. "It might take too much time from your drinking and necking."

The Giants borrowed a kid's bag of marbles on a rainy day at San Antonio and played while waiting for the field to dry out. They ought to bring some of the marbles back with them, and use them instead of baseballs when playing the Cincinnati Reds.

GAR WOOD GOES AFTER NEW SPEED BOAT MARK

Miami Beach, Fla.—Gar Wood turned today to the task of tuning the motors of his Miss America IX for an attempt to bring back the world's speedboat record to America.

Wood arrived here yesterday from New York and went to his home on Indian Creek where he will prepare his craft for the assault on the mark of 103.49 miles an hour established by Kaye Don, of England, at Buenos Aires last week.

The Detroit manufacturer said he would go over the Miss America IX thoroughly before he makes his trial for the record. He did not say when he expected to have the boat ready for its run.

Wood drove his Miss America IX over the placid course in Indian Creek at a speed of 102.56 miles an hour March 21 last, bettering the mark set up by the late Sir Henry O. D. Segrave at Lake Windermere, England, a little more than three miles an hour.

Robins Have Power With Bat; No Strength Afield

BY JOHN R. FOSTER Copyright 1931

MACON, GA. — (CPA)—The Brooklyn team this season is like a volunteer fire department. When it gets under way at a blaze it will throw the glassware out the window and carefully deposit the feather beds on the lawn. The power of its batting order, from the lead-off man down, holds the threat of a rally at all times and this is rare tonic for the pitchers.

Brooklyn has not the best pitching staff in the National league, even though Dazzy Vance has finally quit quibbling over the $2,000 that separated him from the team and has joined his mates down here in Macon. Doubt as to the overwhelming success of the Flatbush hurlers is based on several things. Luque, who had such a good year last season, is more than 40 years old, almost as old as Quinn, if the census taker has him right. Vance is too tough for his age to bother him much, but the question is if the summer is hot will these three prominent pitchers be able to hold up?

Fair Hurling Staff
Phelps did remarkably well in 1930, his first real year in major league baseball, but can he repeat?

Clark is a substantial hurler when his health and strength are right. Helmach is very much a veteran and so is Thurston. The team has Pea Ridge Ray, but Uncle Wilbert Robinson, the manager, would willingly trade him for any good kid. Gallivan, a youngster taken from the Sally league, was the most promising kid hurler in the Florida training camps. He has courage and faith, a good curve ball and many other qualities that go to make up a high class pitcher.

Uncle Robby may turn and twist his pitchers so as to keep the team in the middle of the road, but it will take headwork to lead them into a championship. If they win it, he can take a large slice of the credit.

But to get back to the rough and ready side of the team. The players at times have been fielding like they were facing the chickens. In this and their impressive batting they have recalled the 1910s of yesterday. However, it is not easy to field on many of the diamonds of the south and they may show up better when they get back north.

The infield is looking up with Thompson at second base. He fills the bill and although he is the only player on the team who does not possess to an unusual degree the ability to bat the ball for more than a single, what he lacks in long distance hitting he more than makes up in agility around second. The team of Wright and Thompson may become famous this year. Wright is playing a great shortstop in his admirable, loose jointed style and his wide range as a fielder is taking them on splendidly despite his weak throwing arm.

Outfield Can Bat
The outfield is better batting outfit this year but it is not so much stronger in fielding. The lean and lanky Herman can be as awkward as he was in 1930. O'Doul is speedy and fights a fly ball running in. His arm is no stronger than it was with Philadelphia but the Brooklyn ground is not one of long distances and it will not be much to his advantage in 17 games. And he can hit. He is one of the most cold blooded batters in baseball.

There is only one team thus far under observation in the National league which has the batting power of Brooklyn. That team is the Chicago Cubs. Both nines are composed of men who are drivers with the bat and as likely to hit for long distances as for short ones. Off hand it appears that Brooklyn will have the same kind of a hurly burly fight for the pennant that it had last season and it will not quit fighting until the middle of September,

TAKE DEFINITE STAND, RASKOB PLEA TO PARTY

Home Rules Plan Again Advanced by Democratic Committee Head

Washington — (P)—Another suggestion that Democrats avoid straddling and adopt a definite 1932 platform on controversial subjects—including prohibition—was before that party today in a letter from Chairman Raskob of the national committee.

He asked each national committeeman to make individual recommendations for the 1932 platform and give "particular" attention to prohibition.

Once more he advanced his home rule plan as what he believes to be a solution of liquor questions. Then, answering accusations that he was attempting to dictate to the party, he recalled that the last Democratic convention charged the national committee of which he is chairman with making "recommendations of policies or procedure for the consideration of the convention."

It was with this instruction in mind, he said, that he called the recent national committee meeting at which he advanced the home rule plan and other suggestions.

"Whether we like it or not," he wrote, "prohibition is a critical question in many of our states."

The voters, he asserted, will support the party whose policies and conduct appeal to them as being sincere, honest, courageous, best guaranteeing the preservation of our democracy and promoting freedom and happiness as against a life of tyranny and strife.

"If this line of thought is sound, the Democratic party can profit therefrom through the adoption of a platform which will announce simply and clearly, without equivocation and in language a 14-year-old child can understand, the principles it proposes and promises to enforce in the conduct of our government if its candidates are elected," Raskob added.

Lead Courageous Leader

"If the Democratic party is interested only in winning one election, it might be argued with a great deal of force that we should avoid or straddle all controversial issues and resort to every expediency to gain votes, not through courageous leadership on our own part but through promoting dissatisfaction with the Republican plan in every conceivable way."

The 4,000-word letter also dealt with Raskob's suggestions regarding tariff, business, farm relief, unemployment, the five-day week and public utilities.

But he saw prohibition as the outstanding question on which the party should come to a common and definite understanding.

Admitting a difference between the "dry attitude of the party in the south" and the "liberal attitude of the party in the north," he said prohibition is, perhaps, a "dangerous complication."

"How silly it must be for the Democratic party to disregard the prohibition issue because of its proposed peril."

His home rule plan—which would call for retention of the eighteenth amendment but adoption of another constitutional change giving states control of liquor—is, to his mind, probably the best solution, he said, but added: "perhaps some of you may have a better solution."

"It is important that our friends in the dry states clearly understand," he wrote, that home rule could not become effective until a majority of people in 36 out of the 48 states vote in favor of such an amendment."

PLAN TO PRESENT TWO GERMAN PLAYS

College Players to Raise Funds for Scholarships for German Students

Two one-act German plays will be presented by the German club of Lawrence college at the Zion Lutheran church auditorium on April 24, for the purpose of raising money for scholarships. Last year two scholarships of $20 each were given to two German students. "Mina von Barnhelm" was the play given by the club last year, "Heimat" the year previous and two one-act plays, "Einer muss heissen" and "Der Prozess," three years ago. These plays have been received with considerable interest among the German speaking people of the community.

The plays to be given this year are: "Die Kleinen Verwandten" and "Frühling im Winter" will be given. The former is a satire on the class distinction in German society and the latter is the story of a man contemplating suicide. Both have many witty lines, but underlying the humor there is much food for serious thought.

Tickets are on sale at Bellinger's drug store.

14 Years Ago Today U.S. Officially Entered War

BY BERYL MILLER

The hands of time are turned back 14 years and it is April 6, 1917.

Four days ago, President Wilson went before Congress and in an address that will be remembered as long as history is read, asked for a resolution declaring that a state of war existed between the United States and Germany. Now, to the accompaniment of the wildest scenes during the Civil War and cheers that rocked the massive capitol dome, the resolution has passed. America is in the war at last.

From the plows, the mills, the schools, the stores, the factories, the offices, countless young men are quickly drawn from the peaceful pursuit of civil life for the great task that lies ahead. Long lines form in front of the recruiting stations, soon drafted en train for cantonments by the thousands.

Fourteen years have passed since that historic day. These young men who went away to war are older now, some of those who were not so young then are getting gray.

Where do some of the best known heroes of this conflict stand today and how well have they fared back into peacetime life?

The cases of a few of them are illustrative.

Eddie Rickenbacker, who gave up his career as a famous auto racer to enlist and go to France on the same ship with General Pershing, is now vice president of a large airplane company with offices in New York. He became America's leading ace by shooting down 26 enemy aircraft.

Sergeant Alvin York, decorated by Marshal Foch as America's greatest individual hero of the World War, is back on his farm in the hills of East Tennessee, and also promoting a school for the education of mountain girls and boys. He won his medals by his heroic action in the Argonne in killing 23 Germans and capturing 132 others almost single-handed.

David S. Ingalls, of Cleveland, is now assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics. When the war broke he was an 18-year-old freshman at Yale. He joined up with the air service, brought down six enemy planes and one balloon in two months and thus became America's youngest ace.

Sergeant Sam Woodfill, chosen by General Pershing as America's greatest war hero, was already an old-time infantryman when the war started. He had joined the army years before at 18. This veteran won medals for his silence, with rifle and revolver, a German machine gun that was moving down his buddies.

From Walter to war hero is a long jump, but Frank J. Bart made it. He was 43 years old and walking on tables on April 6, 1917. But it wasn't long after that he wiped out a machine gun nest with an automatic rifle and won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

On and on runs the list of heroic soldiers who came from all walks of life.

But what about the officers of high command? For the most part, they were veteran soldiers.

General Pershing, who became commander-in-chief of the A. E. F., had just wound up a campaign on the Mexican border when called to lead the Big Parade to France. His long military record and knowledge of the service were important factors in his selection.

General Douglas MacArthur, now chief of staff of the U. S. army, was serving as liaison officer between the general staff and the press in 1917. He asked to be transferred to field duty and became chief of staff of the Rainbow Division. They couldn't keep him away from the front lines, where he went over the top unarmed to show the boys he was willing to go with them. Twice he was wounded.

Major General Snedley D. Butler, "Old Gimlet Eye" of the marines, ed to the top without benefit of West Point. His first job was doing kitchen police, and he saw many long years of hard service before getting his big chance in the big conflict.

Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, who developed the organization that carried more than 2,000,000 safely to Europe in 18 months, also came up from the ranks. Now he is head of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau.

Not all of the executives who played important roles in the war had army training.

One of these men leaped into prominence in August, 1917, when Pershing sent the following cable to the War Department:

"Want best railroad man available in the United States to direct army transportation in France. Don't care if he never wore uniform in his life, so long as he can make trains move."

W. W. Atterbury, then vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, went. When he returned in 1919, he was the possessor of the title of brigadier general, of D. S. C. and several foreign citations.

Another such was Charles G. Dawes, who left the presidency of a Chicago trust company for a colonel's commission. Dawes got excellent results in building railroads and sending provisions up front, and soon became a general. He was later vice president and is now America's ambassador to England.

Newton D. Baker got his training as a lawyer and mayor of Cleveland, but he had been in Washington as Wilson's secretary of war long before America entered the conflict. So had Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, a newspaperman.

Many other names of men from all walks of life could be added to the list of those to whom war brought the spotlight of fame. For as Julius said: "The gentle breath of peace would leave him on the surface neglected and unmoved. It is only the tempest that lifts him from his place."

MUST SACRIFICE SPECULATION TO INSURE INCOME

Many Stocks and Bonds Offer High Yield, but Also Provide Risk

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1931, by Consolidated Press Association)

(This is the tenth of a series of articles discussing the application of investment principles to present day conditions in business and in securities.)

New York—To meet the need for income in an investment program it is usually necessary to sacrifice speculative possibilities. There are stocks and there are bonds which offer a high yield at the market and which have speculative attraction but they do not fall in the investment classification. The high yield is an indication of doubt as to the safety of the dividend or the coupon rate, as the case may be. On the other hand, securities of the highest grade at times are bought not for the return but with the expectation of advance in market price and to that extent they are speculative.

The one group which always meets the requirements of the individual who must have both safety and income is that including the best callable preferred stocks and the best callable bonds. Such do not advance much above the call price. To illustrate, take a 7 per cent preferred stock redeemable at 115 plus accrued dividends. Buyers will hesitate to pay much more than 115 lest they have their investment called at that price and so sustain a loss on the principal. But a 7 per cent preferred stock selling at 115 yields 6 per cent on the money. Therefore an investment in a stock of this kind has no speculative quality whatever, but it does give a yield higher than could be had in any other security of equal grade.

More rarely a 7 per cent preferred stock will be callable at 110 in which case the yield is that much higher, but still without any reasonable expectations of a rising market.

Don't risk your job by offending with 'B.O.'

(Body Odor)

A GOOD job is worth hanging onto at all times. Nobody wants to risk dismissal. But are we always careful enough?

When business is slack, employers become more critical. Sometimes very little may turn the scales against us—especially some personal fault like carelessness about "B.O." (body odor)—always so offensive to those about us.

Of course no one means to offend. But we're far too likely to trust to luck that we won't. "Surely I'd notice it myself if I did," we argue. All wrong! The offender is always the last to realize this fault, because we so quickly become used to an ever-present odor.

We shouldn't take chances of offending those we can't afford to displease.

Adopt Lifebuoy as your toilet soap. Then you know you're safe. For Lifebuoy's creamy, refreshing, antiseptic lather does more than merely cleanse the surface. It penetrates and purifies pores—removes all odor. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you, "No danger of 'B.O.' now!"

Great for the complexion

Massage face with Lifebuoy's gentle, deep-cleansing lather once a day. It will free pores of clogged impurities; keep the skin fresh, clear, glowing with health. Women envied for their lovely complexions declare that Lifebuoy "facials" are the finest of all beauty treatments. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

..(a true experience)..

HARRY was going back to the payroll again! It seemed wonderful to the family (he had been out of work three months) but the landlord only shook his head. They'd have to pay by Saturday, or go . . . "Can't we borrow the money?" his wife asked. "Others do."

"They're luckier than we are, then," he said gloomily. "I wouldn't ask anyone to sign for me, and I guess we can't borrow without endorsers."

But the next day they saw an advertisement like this. They visited the Household offices and got $220 on their own signatures. There were no embarrassing investigations.

Household's charge on loans above $100 up to $300 is nearly 1/3 less than the usual rate. And there are no deductions in advance, no extra fees of any kind. Twenty months are allowed to repay. Charge is made only on the balance due and for the actual time the money is kept.

Should your family ever need $50 to $300, for any good reason, you are invited, to 'phone, call at the nearest office, or use the coupon.

ALL BIDS FOR PUBLIC MUSEUM HELD TOO HIGH

Seven Lowest Bidders Asked to Revise Figures by Thursday

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Out of twelve bids submitted Saturday for construction of the proposed New London public museum, the seven low bidders were asked to return Thursday afternoon with revised bids. No agreement was made Saturday, as the prices quoted were considered out of proportion to the value of the building committee and the library board.

By requesting revised bids it is hoped that lower figures will be quoted without lessening the beauty or cheapening the finished building. Such changes as substitution of ceiling instead of beams, or an estimate of a rough ceiling to be covered with panels, the sort of flooring material introduced and quarter sawed oak in the interior finishing of the building may bring the building figures somewhere below $12,000, which is where the figures must be placed in order that the building program go on, the board indicated.

The lowest bid was $12,896 submitted by the Hoffman Construction company of Appleton. The next was the Hegner company, also of Appleton, with a bid of $13,590. Victor Thomas, Frank Schoenrock, Jr., local contractors, and the New London Construction company local bidders and W. E. Polley, had bids in the neighborhood of $14,000 or below. The highest bid was that of the Fleur Brothers of Fond du Lac, whose bid reached $18,300.

Those who will be asked to return are the Hoffman and Hegner construction companies of Appleton, Victor Thomas, W. E. Polley, New London Construction and Schoenrock Construction company, New London, and the Appleton Construction company, Appleton.

"Co-Op" Promoters Collect $1,000 At Chilton, Leave

Chilton, Wis. — Farmers of Calumet-co who subscribed to a proposition whereby they would save hundreds of dollars through co-operative buying of their commodities, found themselves $1,000 poorer Saturday, when six promoters of the scheme fled from their Chilton headquarters, having been put under suspicion.

The promoters had been working in the county for four weeks, supposedly in the interest of a farmers' cooperation organization. They charged a membership fee of three dollars and are believed to have collected approximately $1,000 in their canvass. Under the plan, the farmers were to buy their requirements through the organization for a low price made possible by wholesale buying.

A notice published by the Wisconsin department of agriculture, warning farmers against dealing with "fly-by-night" schemes, led the Chilton Chamber of Commerce to send a telegram to Madison inquiring about the authenticity of the co-op association and brought the reply that the organization did not have the endorsement of the state body. A. L. McMahon, teacher of agriculture in the Chilton high school, denied any endorsement of the scheme which the promoters are alleged to have told the farmers was approved by him.

When the promoters became aware that they were under suspicion, they left for parts unknown, leaving behind them, among other liabilities, a $100 hotel bill.

Your Birthday

"ARIES"
If April 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 10:10 p. m., from 2 p. m. to 4:15 p. m. and from 7:45 p. m. to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

The planetary aspect of April 6th predict variable conditions and perplexing moods. Only those who can rise superior to environment and who can maintain equilibrium in spite of oscillation, should tempt Fortune by fresh endeavor. All others should remain quiescent.

Children born on this April 6th will be just, faithful, and capable of great self-sacrifice. Their happiness will consist more in doing for others than in pursuing selfish interests. They promise to become deservedly popular and their friends will be legion. They will be affectionate and loyal.

If you were born on an April 6th, you are quite clever, self-willed, persistent and determined. In spite, however, of exceptional strength of character, you often deprive yourself of final victory by passivity, when, in order to achieve your purpose, action is essential. This rather contradictory temperament is not a result of weakness or lack of vision, but it is only attributable to natural kindness of spirit, and an inborn fear of hurting others.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

"Maybe you'd better add something more to that order, William. The waiter didn't look very—er—pleased."

You, although willing to sacrifice time and pleasure for sake of a pet plan or project, are always careful to surround yourself in your home with everything that provides ease and comfort. After any strenuous effort, you needs must have a peaceful shelter in which to create your own environment, instead of permitting environment to influence you.

You possess a strong personality—more compelling than persuasive. You are loyal to those who are loyal to you. Your nature is a grateful one, and though rather independent of favors, only accept them when they can be generously repaid. Life holds in store for you many successes and few disappointments.

Successful People Born April 6th:

- 1—James Mill—historian and political economist.
- 2—Harry Houdini—magician.
- 3—J. Warren Andrews—organist.
- 4—Camille Pierre Dudent—aprilist.
- 5—William R. King—vice-president under Pierce.
- 6—Alexander S. Mackenzie—naval officer.

"ARIES"
If April 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 3:30 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 1:45 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:15 p. m.

The astrological indications of April 7th are very favorable for all those engaged in professional work, and success, possibly despaired of yesterday is assured. For all others, the signs are not so propitious, and no valuable material awards can be anticipated. It will only be possible to report slow progress.

A child born on this April 7th will always be distinguished by an affable attitude and a generous spirit. It does not promise to be particularly ly clever although it will labor at its studies. Its disposition will be the one great asset on which it will have to build its career.

If you were born on April 7th, you are indefatigable in pursuit of knowledge. This was very much in evidence in your youth, and the learning you have acquired, only seems to convince you that you know very little, and that you are averse to satiate yourself with proven facts. Your laudable curiosity is not confined to any particular subject. In your office, in your home, and in social life, you are never content with superficiality. You always probe the depths.

Your interests, are possibly, too diversified to bring you any great measure of success. On the other hand, your painstaking efforts make you reliable and dependable. You, unfortunately, lack imagination, and only delve into what is or has been, and never dream of what might be. You do not evince much interest in social attractions. You prefer solitude, where, to your own satisfaction, you can solve the problems that perplex and worry you. You are not, however, a curmudgeon, and when with others you have a graciousness all your own that charms and pleases.

If a woman, your home is scientifically managed and you are thrifty. It would be better, possibly, if you did not suppress emotion quite so much. In the long run, a man sets more value on demonstrated affection, than on a house run like clockwork.

Successful People Born April 7th:

- 1—Francis C. Lowell—founder of Lowell, Mass.
- 2—Lewis Nixon—ship-builder.
- 3—William A. Pinkerton—detective.
- 4—William Wadsworth—poet.
- 5—Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson—Arch-bishop of Canterbury, 1902-1928.
- 6—John H. Gear—governor of Iowa.

CAR SALES DROP IN STATE 1.4 PER CENT

Wisconsin Sales Decrease
More Than Most of Neighboring States

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington—Wisconsin showed a larger proportionate decrease in its motor vehicle registrations last year than did any of its neighboring states except Michigan.

Wisconsin's 677,452 passenger cars including taxis and buses, and 105,110 trucks and road tractors represented a total decrease of 10,940 or 1.4 per cent in the number of motor vehicles in the state from the 1929 figures. Michigan showed a decrease of 4.8 per cent; Iowa a decrease of 0.8 per cent; Illinois an increase of 1.4 per cent; Indiana, an increase of 1 per cent; and Minnesota, an increase of 0.4 per cent.

Wisconsin's income from motor licenses and taxes last year amounted to $13,058,521, the eight largest income from this source registered by any state.

For the country as a whole, there was an increase of 22,336 or .08 per cent in motor vehicles registered. Income for the entire country from licenses and taxes equaled $355,704,860 in 1930.

Two states, California and New York, showed more than 2,000,000 cars each, and five states, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas had more than a million.

Of course the plants are well fed and nourished.

Start in the House

It is a good plan to start with 40 or 50 early plants, grown in the house or in the hotbed. These should give ripe fruit in about 55 to 65 days after the plants are set in the garden. If the weather is warm and growing conditions are good this time may be a little shorter.

If you make a second planting about two weeks before you pick the first ripe fruit from the early planting you will have a supply of tomatoes for the latter part of the season. Then by making a third setting of plants about 60 days before time for the first fall frosts, you are likely to have a fine crop of very late tomatoes and a lot of green ones for pickles and for ripening in the house after frost has killed the vines.

It pays, in many cases, to stake and prune a part of the early setting of plants. By this method the plants may be set about two feet apart in the rows.

Drive a strong stake about four feet high beside each plant and tie the main stem of the plant to the stake with soft string. Leave only the main stem and trim off the side branches close to the main stem.

Take care that you do not cut off the blossom clusters which are borne on the sides of the stems and not in the pockets formed where the leaves join the stem.

Your Home GARDEN

One hundred years ago no one would have guessed that "Love Apples," ornamental garden plants grown for their bright, red fruits, would become one of the most important of our vegetable crops.

The most important of our vegetable crops in those days they sent for the doctor when a child disobeyed and ate the pretty red fruits which were believed to be poisonous. Doctors began to recommend them as food and tomatoes gradually came into their own.

Tomatoes are fairly easy to grow. They will grow on a moderately rich soil and they do not require much cultivation. They require warm weather, it is true, and are subject to attack by cutworms and a big green worm known as a hornworm on account of the horn it has on its head.

One Disease Stopped Tomato wilt disease, for a time, threatened to put an end to tomato growing in southern gardens where the soil had become infected, but along came the plant breeders with wilt resistant varieties that yield a fair to good crop even where the disease is present.

The main point, when you plant tomatoes, is that you start planting early and then make one or two later plantings so as to have plenty for use during the summer and fall and some to can.

There are early varieties like the Earliana and Sonny Best, medium varieties like the Marglobe and late varieties like the Stone, Marglobe and the new Break O'Day promise to cover the whole field of early, medium and late because they fight off disease and go on producing fruit the whole season through, provided

Notice of Judicial Election

APRIL 7, 1931

State of Wisconsin
County of Outagamie ss.

To the Electors of Outagamie County:

Office of County Clerk.
Mar. 24, 1931.

Notice is hereby given that a Judicial election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages, and election precincts in the county of Outagamie on the Seventh day of April, 1931, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office each in its proper column together with the questions submitted to a vote in the sample ballots below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

(a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot (or ballots) from the ballot clerk which must have indorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking the ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

On the Judicial Ballot the voter will mark a cross or mark in the square to the right of the name of each candidate he wishes to vote for, or write in the name, if it be not there.

(d) A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

(e) If a ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all (of any one kind) shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballots. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(f) After it is marked the ballot should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed indorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot, or ballots to be placed in the ballot box and pass out of the voting place.

(g) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.

(h) Following will be found a facsimile of each of the official ballots.

JOHN E. HANTSCH, County Clerk.

It was a horrible life. I loathed every hour of it, and nothing but my fanatical yearning for vengeance enabled me to endure it.

From time to time, when I heard some scoundrel narrating the details of some big swindle, robbery, blackmail, or kidnapping, hope would revive, and I would follow up the clew.

But before Monday's installment ends there's another limp form beside the one beneath the lamp-post.

last spring when the electorate voted his retention against Reynolds and Raymond J. Cannon, disbarred Milwaukee attorney, for the unexpired term.

Mensing, a new figure in the race, has based his campaign on the contention that supreme court judges have assumed powers that made them superior to the will of the people. Reynolds was waging his third electoral contest within a year and Justice Fowler his second.

Spring election campaigning, customarily apathetic, was enlivened in Milwaukee by the attempt of Cannon, ousted from legal practice on charges of ambulance chasing, to defeat Circuit Judge Charles A. Aarons for reelection in the eighth branch of the second circuit. Cannon, posing as "the poor man's lawyer," made caustic attacks against his opponent, the bar and judiciary generally. He polled a large vote in the county in the supreme court election last spring.

Circuit Judge John C. Kleczka is opposed in the sixth branch of the second district by George H. Eburne and Judge August E. Braun is opposed in the seventh branch by R. J. Mudroch, Socialist. Judge E. B. Belden, who is completing his eighth term, is opposed by Calvin Stewart, present Kenosha municipal judge, in the first circuit.

Two Unopposed
Unopposed for reelection to six years terms as circuit judges are August C. Hopmann of the ninth district and Henry Grass of the fourteenth district. Judge Grass will begin his eighteenth year on the bench.

In two Milwaukee civil court contests Judge A. J. Hedding of the first branch is unopposed while Judge Michael F. Blenski of the third branch is opposed by W. I. Rosenbalm. District Judge George E. Page is opposed for reelection in Milwaukee by Arthur Shultin, Socialist.

Municipal judges whose terms expire are: Laurence S. Coe, Barron-co, Second branch; Earl S. Risberg, Barron-co, Third branch; Emerson C. Wier, Bayfield-co, First branch; George A. Shattlesney, Milwaukee-co; Theodore Berg, Outagamie-co; Alex Higgins, Vilas-co; William E. Pors, Washburn-co; Thomas W. Parkinson, Waushara-co (east); W. Evans, Waushara-co (west); and Silas L. Spengler, Winnebago-co.

Unexpired terms in municipal courts will be filled in Dunn-co where Judge C. P. Freeman occupies the post made vacant by the death of Judge Peleg B. Clark and in Sawyer-co where Judge Harley O. Moreland fills the vacancy created by the death of Judge John Riordan.

Controversy Over Belden
Much interest in southeastern Wisconsin is manifest in the attempt to unseat Judge Belden, who refused to resign when under fire by a legislative committee. In 1929, Judge Belden was a storm center at the time he ordered a grand jury investigation of violence during a knitters strike at the Allen-A company mills. His opponents dug up various charges intended to show he was unfit for office.

The county board appropriated $40,000 for a special investigation of crimes regarding the strike. The legality of the appropriation was questioned and a bill was introduced in the legislature to permit the grand jury to spend $10,000. In an attempt to defeat Judge Belden's order for a grand jury investigation, opponents sought to overrule the judge's expenditures of private detectives for quantities of liquor and entertainment of prostitutes during the 1921 grand jury probe which sent the police chief, sheriff and other Kenosha-co officials to prison.

Judge Belden's opponents went back 20 years to attempt to show he made a false affidavit to obtain a resident Michigan fishing license and that he had borrowed money from Z. G. Simmons, president of the Simmons company. Simmons deducted the $20,000 loan from income taxes in 1920 as uncollectable. Later, Judge Belden presided at cases involving the Simmons company.

Attacked on Loan
The assembly ordered an investigation and after hearing all testimony and recalling charges except that concerned in the loan. The investigating committee found in a majority report that the loan and its effects "necessarily creates a lack of public confidence in him as a judge and 'recommended' he resign. He refused. The minority report concluded evidence was insufficient for impeachment action. The matter finally was dropped.

In addition to the judicial elections, several cities elect officers tomorrow.
The one heated pre-election mayorality contest at the polls divided as Mayor William H. Armstrong at Racine withdrew his name in favor of William Swoboda, Socialist, who opposes George Herzog, former postmaster.

Armstrong for months has been the central figure of school and municipal fights. Charges were made that his administration diverted funds intended for the school board into city channels and that the William Deo Supply company was organized and operated merely for the purpose of acting as a proxy for the mayor to receive city orders for supplies and transfer them to his own firm, the Armstrong country. Armstrong said he withdrew chiefly because the city failed to show gratitude for his years of service.

Fight at Superior
At Superior in the midst of arrests on charges of illegal voting at the recent primaries, Mayor George J. Dietrich is opposed by former Mayor Fred A. Baxter who resigned from the state senate in 1913 to become the city's second mayor under

Another Chapter in the Adventures of Elinor Smith

Elinor Smith, New York's famous flapper flyer, was smiling confidently as you see her at the left when she went aloft to try to regain the women's altitude record. But the attempt ended with an uncontrolled dive of nearly five miles, an almost miraculous landing, the minor crack-up pictured below, and a flood of tears from Elinor. She is shown holding the oxygen tank and inhaler which were believed to have been accidentally cut off when, at an altitude of more than 25,000 feet, she was within a short distance of the record. Rendered unconscious in the rarified air, she tumbled to within 2000 feet of the ground before regaining her senses and righting her plane to make a rough landing.

Times Change Things, But Not Boys' Books

Denver, Colo.—Times may change, but not boys' ideas about the best kind of fiction.

The favorite boyhood books of 1931 are the same as those that claimed the minds of today's famous men, when they were youngsters.

That moment when Robinson Crusoe found the famous foot-print in the sands was the most important in all juvenile fiction. The breath-taking adventures in the last of the Mohicans is a close second, with Swiss Family Robinson not far behind.

This is the view of the majority of 24 prominent men who answered a questionnaire sent by Mrs. Katherine W. Watson of the Denver Public Library Children's Department, in which they were asked to check their boyhood favorites from a list of 40 books now popular with children.

The project was conducted in conjunction with Book Week, beginning Nov. 16. Many of the men questioned were authors and illustrators, although one inventor, one included.

One of the most prized replies came from Thomas A. Edison, who checked The Deerslayer, Ivanhoe, Last of the Mohicans, Prince and the Pauper, Story of a Bad Boy, Three Musketeers and Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea. He added, "Most of the unmarked works were not published when I was a boy."

Several months were required to compile the list as will be seen from the following note which was appended to another list:

"Commander Byrd is at the South pole and, of course, cannot get a letter. I am marking the books I remembered he enjoyed. I am his mother." Mrs. Byrd listed as her son's favorites: Adventures of Tom Sawyer, Arabian Nights Entertainments, Biography of a Grizzly, Call of the Wild, Gulliver's Travels, Huckleberry Finn, Jungle Book, Kenilworth, King Arthur and His Knights, Men of Iron, Oliver Twist, Robinson Crusoe, Swiss Family Robinson, Three Musketeers, Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea, and Bob, Son of Battle.

On the judicial ballot, Fred V. Heinemann is the only candidate for county judge, and Theodore Berg and John A. Lonsdorf are the aspirants for municipal judge. The three entrants in the race for judge of the supreme court are John W. Reynolds, Chester A. Fowler, and George L. Mendling.
The referendum question is:
Island and Tom Brown's School Days.
7—Arabian Nights Entertainments, Deerslayer, Gulliver's Travels, Jungle Book and the Story of a Bad Boy.
8—Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, Call of the Wild, Hans Brinker, King Arthur and His Knights and Prince and the Pauper.
9—Black Beauty.
10—Two Years Before the Mast.
11—Kidnapped and Merchant of Venice.
12—Bob, Son of Battle, Captains Courageous, Merry Adventures of Robin Hood and Mysterious Island.
13—Black Arrow, Kenilworth and Wild Animals I Have Known.
14—Toby of the Circus.
15—Biography of a Grizzly.
16—Beautiful Joe, Men of Iron and Otto of the Silver Hand.

A summary of the result follows:
1—Robinson Crusoe.
2—Last of the Mohicans.
3—Swiss Family Robinson.
4—Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea.
5—Adventures of Tom Sawyer, Christmas Carol, David Copperfield, Huckleberry Finn, Ivanhoe and Oliver Twist.

the commission form of government. Baxter, target for court actions and recall attempts during 11 subsequent years, was displaced by Dietrich in 1923 when the form of government was changed.
Six candidates enlisted the race for mayor at Chippewa Falls and citizens vote again on a proposal to return to a 10-ward city government. The commission form was established in 1920 and a year ago citizens voted a 10-ward form. A court dispute over the special election was carried to the state supreme court and the court set April 7 at the date for re-submission of the question.
In Douglas-co voters will decide between their present form of county government with 30 supervisors and a proposed commission of seven.

New London, new aldermen and supervisors are being elected.

Most members of the county board are seeking reelection Tuesday, and many are facing a stiff battle in their efforts to retain their offices.

There has been but little election excitement in the county, outside of some local battles over village and town offices and in a few instances in the fights between candidates for supervisor jobs.

Several issues are stirring the latter fights. One of these is the proposal to build a new courthouse, to which there has developed a widespread opposition throughout the county. The consensus of opinion among voters seems to be that while there is a recognized need for more room for county officers, this is not the time to build. Farmers and city residents alike are complaining that taxes are too high and it is almost a certainty that the county board, at its April meeting, will take no steps to begin work on the new courthouse.

Another issue which is creating some discussion is that of the county dance hall ordinance. While there are a few citizens who think the present county law is too stringent, these seem to be heavily outnumbered by those who feel the county has taken a step in the right direction in roadhouse control. This latter group will insist, when they elect supervisors next Tuesday, that these supervisors stand pat behind the present law.

Members of the English Parliament have voted, 258 to 130, to not give up their right to travel first class on railway passes.

Hard Times Are Unknown North Of Arctic Circle

Vancouver, B. C.—The world of the white man may lie under a business depression from New York to Melbourne and from London to Capetown; but the land of the Eskimo, which is so cold and inhospitable that no white man lives there by choice, is experiencing a high prosperity.

Times are good north of the Arctic circle, and the slant-eyed Eskimo is making the most of them. For from living on the rapped edge of destitution the Eskimo has prospered amazingly in the past year.

Certain Eskimos are earning as much as $40,000 a year in the Arctic. Eskimos have been known to pay as much as $375 for an airplane ride. Other Eskimos have paid $300 a ton for coal—and haven't complained about it.

Ho's Up to Date Now
The Eskimo, in fact, has gone modern with a bang, and it has agreed with him. Instead of following the traditional dog team on long, laborious hikes through the northland in search of furs, the Eskimo of today is apt to be found traveling by airplane. If he doesn't take the airplane he will ride in one of a fleet of Eskimo-owned and operated schooners, most of which were built in San Francisco and taken to the Arctic by the Hudson Bay Company. These boats are paid for from the profits of furs.

During the last year one Eskimo brought by airplane to Herschel Island from Banks Land a catch of no less than 1100 white fox pelts which he sold for $38 each—making his year's income a neat $41,800.

Another Eskimo family is known to have realized more than $40,000 for its furs during the past 12 months.

A regular plane service launched by Commercial Airways, Ltd., from Fort McMurray to Atlatik operates chiefly on Eskimo passenger and freight traffic. Another Northern line operated by Western Airways also has a substantial and profitable Eskimo business.

All of this prosperity finds the Eskimo in a curious mood these days. He goes for certain of the white man's customs in a wholehearted manner—clings to certain of his native customs with equal devotion.

For one thing, he seems to hate to save money. His attitude towards his future is about like his attitude toward the dangers of aviation; he simply never thinks of it. Flyers report, incidentally, that Eskimos make the best of all passengers. They never worry.

So when the Eskimo gets his money for his furs he instantly sets out to spend it. He buys everything he sees that strikes his fancy—new hunting or fishing equipment, the latest white man's outdoor clothes (which, in the Arctic, come again), and huge quantities of expensive food for feasts. In the fall he comes back to the nearest trading post for his winter supplies—and generally he gets them on credit.

He has adopted the white man's trick of holding beauty contests. At Baker Lake, 1000 miles north of Winnipeg, the first Eskimo beauty contest was held recently, with 24 girls competing for the hand mirror which was offered as first prize. A species of Olympic games was held at Christmas time at Coopermine River, in the northwest territories, with races, jumping contests and similar events for Eskimo men, women and children.

They're Dancing Now
Furthermore, the Eskimo has gone in for dancing, and young Eskimos have taken up this practice to an amazing extent in the last few years.

A new tariff by southeastern railroads permits sending of golf equipment, when checked, the same as other baggage.

FIND CITIZENS ARE USING MORE DAIRY PRODUCTS

Drop in Prices Is Believed to Have Encouraged Greater Consumption

BY RUBY A. BRACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Apparently the only thing the United States Department of Agriculture can find to say to encourage the dairyman is that it seems that more people are eating and drinking more dairy products as a result of the low prices.

While there was no change in the farm prices of dairy products between Feb. 15 and March 15, the price at the last reported date was still 25 points lower than a year ago.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics says that there will be very plentiful supplies of all dairy products during the summer months, if production is maintained at its present rate. The bureau also forecasts a further drop in the price of corn, which may help cut down the cost of production of milk and butter. They say there will be 41 percent more corn produced this year than last.

The Bureau of Dairy Industry likewise urges farmers to try to profit from the by-products of milk, particularly skim milk, the most important part of the 900,000,000 pounds of valuable food protein in each year's volume of dairy products. The bureau has a new formula for production of cottage cheese and has issued a free bulletin about it to help the farmers do something with their by-products.

New Routes Coming
Twelve new star mail routes will be established in Wisconsin on July 1, and one of the longest in the state will be established a month or so earlier.

This route will open in May or June to take care of summer residents of Wisconsin Island as well as the farmers along the way, all of whom have been seeking better mail service for many years.

Vocational Education
The president's emergency committee for employment is brugging again about the use of vocational education in Wisconsin to help the unemployed find new opportunities for work. The committee now reports that a committee has been formed throughout Wisconsin composed of directors of vocational educational schools from all cities and towns in the state. This committee meets regularly with the governor's committee on unemployment, receiving suggestions from the governor's group and interchanging ideas among the directors.

"Large numbers of adults are now enrolled in the day school," A. R. Graham, director of the Madison school, reported to the committee. "taking courses in bookkeeping, typewriting, plumbing, welding, mechanical drawing, mathematics, English and so forth. Some are acquiring new skills, others are improving their general education. Already several have been trained and placed in new fields of employment which were closely related to their former occupations."

Seven Wisconsin army engineers were in Nicaragua surveying the proposed route of the Nicaraguan canal when the earthquake struck Managua, the country's capital, last week.

They are: Second Lieutenant Stanley J. Horn of Colby; Corporal Edward J. Fricke of Manitowoc; Privates Joseph Frank Flawicki of Cudahy, George A. Kluchsky of New London, and Edward W. DeFries, Louis J. Fersch and Joseph J. Mikila, of Milwaukee.

So far as has been heard, none of them was injured.

Uncle Sam has bought more forest land in Wisconsin, 16,661 acres in Price-co, conveyed by the Wisconsin Central railroad for $26,657, being the largest tract for which the Department of Justice has cleared title. The department reported earlier for the post office site at Wisconsin Rapids, which cost $20,000, so that the government can now acquire it, survey it, and draw plans for the building.

Many Wisconsin People In Washington On Tours

BY DOROTHEA J. LEWIS
Post-Crescent Washington Society Editor

Washington — "Happy Easter time," says Washington. "An end to quiet and sadness and penitence and the beginning of gayety and the 'little season'."

Last week was a quiet week in the national capital, about the only really Lenten week during that whole 40 days, but it was a busy week for Wisconsin people in Washington.

In the first place, the city seemed full of Wisconsin people. Trainsloads of teachers and students, principally from Milwaukee came during the week on an educational tour, and had a simply grand time sight-seeing.

Every place one went, one saw bus load after bus load of the sight-seers, winding their slow way about the Lincoln Memorial, or disembarking before the White House.

As a street car climbed up Capitol Hill and passed the long string of busses, one rather testy street car conductor grew talkative. He turned to his nearest neighbor, a passenger on the hand side seat, and started in, "Do ya see those busses?" he said. "The passenger nodded. 'Well, sir' the conductor went on, 'all those people are from Wisconsin. Yes, sir, I guess there must be high onto 5,000 people in Wisconsin'."

He shook his head. "It isn't good business."

He gathered the threads of his argument about him and said: "They give them low transportation rates and bring them here and then the hotels give them low rates to keep them here. You don't need to do that to bring people to Washington. People come to Washington anyhow. It's just not good business."

His conversational partner wasn't nearly so interested as I, but he asked how the conductor knew so much about business, educational tours and Wisconsin people.

"Oh, I," said the conductor, dismissing his knowledge with a shrug.

USUAL METHOD OF ROASTING COFFEE MAKES FLAVOR VARY

But Controlled Roasting, Patented by Hills Bros., Prevents Variation

The elusive flavor of coffee is completely captured by a roasting process invented and used exclusively by Hills Bros.

This process roasts a few pounds at a time instead of in bulk. A constant stream of expertly blended coffee is introduced into the roaster in automatically measured lots and passes through in a steady flow, roasting a little at a time. The speed of operation and temperature remain the same with the result that Hills Bros. Coffee is always uniform.

The common bulk method of roasting cannot develop the uniform flavor that Hills Bros. patented, continuous process develops. For this reason, no other coffee has the same wonderful flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee.

Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee in the vacuum can which keeps it fresh always. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken from this can and kept out. Coffee packed in ordinary cans, even if air-tight, does not stay fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab-trade-mark-on the can.

Hills Bros. Coffee, Inc., Chicago, Illinois.

"I lecture to these sight-seers for the street car company."

Well, it may not be good business but the tours meant a very good time for the Wisconsin folk who came. Among those who came here were Miss Mary Carrigan, who was entertained at luncheon at the Capitol and taken sight-seeing by Mrs. John C. Schafer, wife of Rep. Schafer of Milwaukee, on Monday; Adeline Frazee, also entertained at the Capitol by Mrs. Schafer; and Burt Dunlap.

Other similar tours are expected from Wisconsin within the next few weeks and during Cherry Blossom time, which is a little late this year.

Miss Gwen Geach, formerly of Appleton, entertained Miss Ruth Conlee of Milwaukee, for several days last week. It was Miss Conlee's first visit to the National Capital and she quite fell in love with the city.

Miss Sylvia Meyer, daughter of Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Balthazar Meyer, formerly of Madison played the harp with the Peabody Conservatory orchestra in Baltimore on Monday.

The conservatory gives about three concerts a year.

The Lawrence College debating team composed of Edwin West, Mr. Egges, and Mr. Morton, continued its winning way and bested the American University team here Monday night.

This is the fortieth win out of 42 recent debates in which the Lawrence team has taken part.

The Lawrence team upheld the affirmative of the question, "Resolved that the several states should immediately adopt legislation providing for compulsory unemployment insurance." Professor Franke, coach of the Lawrence team, is accompanying the organization on its tour of debates. A debate with William and Mary College was cancelled so the team had two or three extra days in Washington, much to their delight. From Washington they went on up into New England for various other debates.

Dr. Delos O. Kinsman, formerly of Appleton, presided at the Monday night debate. Sunday, Dr. and Mrs. Kinsman and Miss Mary Louise Brown, also formerly of Appleton, entertained the team at dinner.

The last week has been a very happy one for A. M. Brayton of Madison and his many friends. His recent series of eye operations at the Wilmer Institute in Baltimore have proved highly successful.

Mr. Brayton is not feeling extremely well but he is "really seeing things" at last. He is anxious to return to Madison but has been cautioned against a hurried return to work, so he and Mrs. Brayton will probably remain in the National Capital throughout cherry blossom time.

They were joined by their son, Richard Brayton of La Crosse, Friday, who came to Washington from Miami.

Sunday, March 29, Mrs. Brayton entertained Miss Frances Burgess of La Crosse and Miss Ruby A.
